

ILLINOIS CONTRACTOR 'TAKEN FOR A RIDE' KILLS GANGSTER AND ESCAPES ON 61 SOUTH

Being propositioned by a Chicago whiskey ring, offered $1500 for nine days work, then spirited away to St. Louis, where he was held in a "cast" and then rushed south in a large Packard sedan from which he made his escape after killing one member of the gang, is the story of Lawrence J. Miller, 35 years old, contractor and building engineer of Naperville, Ill., who Tuesday morning received treatment for knife wounds by local physicians.

Miller was interviewed by a Standard representative and finally decided to talk.

The story begins about three months ago when a Mr. Jim Minero, boss of a Dago outfit in Chicago, asked him to accompany him to a building site in a sub-division near the city. Miller was gone from home two weeks, while he staked out the building, and laid plans for the structure. It was to have been a sheet-iron building with a "blind" basement.

Negotiations were made, plans drafted and work on the building actually started. Minero was OK, says Miller, but his sons started the argument. They first demanded that changes be made in the plans. They were accommodated. Then followed a two months' lapse while one change in plans followed another. Finally Miller's men completed a six-foot "blind" basement, (having no windows).

The Minero boys demanded, however, that some of their "gang" be allowed to work on the structure, which led in turn to conflict with Union men employed on the job. Miller refused to allow this concession.

In a short time the gang leaders were back and this time demanded that Miller's men continue building operations for two months while the whiskey ring completed installation of a distillery in the basement. "In other words," said Miller, "they wanted my men to camouflage their actions. We could not agree to that either, and the building operations were subsequently stopped."

Shortly after that the Minero gang approached Miller with an entirely different plan. He was to sell a burglar alarm system to banks. The first year's use would not involve one cent of outlay; after that if the job proved satisfactory, the bank was to pay $500. Miller was to contract for the work, but the gang was actually to make the installation. Miller's share of each deal was to be $250 and six such jobs were outlined for DuPage County, Ill., in the first visit. "It meant $1500 for nine days' work, but I turned down that racket, also," stated Miller. "I was approached with the bank robbing deal on May 20, two weeks ago tonight (June 3)."

By that time the gang decided that their friend Miller "knew too much". They asked him to get into their car and take a drive out to the subdivision, Miller leaving his own car in the city.

The drive terminated in St. Louis after countless stops at road houses, beer joints and "parties" of similar nature. In the Missouri city, he was turned over to a gang of Italians, who first proceeded to "sweat" him for possible information. The DuPage County contractor was placed in a "cast"—a wooden case which holds the body absolutely rigid in one position. "After, I don't know how long, the pain became so great that I lost consciousness, but I still refused to talk. Neither would I consent to the propositions they outlined. Finally they let me go, fed me plenty of greasy, peppery foods and about three nights ago, the whole outfit started out on a joyride.

There were eleven of them in two Lincolns and a Packard. All were Italians except two, an Irishman, who seemed to be the boss and one German. We made many stops at roadhouses, and a long one at a place in Southern Illinois. Finally, they crossed a bridge and finally went south again.

The Lincoln in which Miller was placed, contained only two of the gang, a "Dago", who soon dropped off into a drunken sleep and the driver. As they drove along, Miller found a folding jack handle and planned his method of escape. He finally decided to "let the driver have it", and take a chance on the drunken Italian in the seat with himself. One quick blow across the temple and the driver slumped over the wheel. The Dago awoke and succeeded in stabbing Miller twice, once in the left breast and once in the left arm below the elbow. Miller, however, rolled out of the car and struck out across fields.

The wounded man succeeded in getting a ride into Portageville, where the city police gave him a lift to Hayti and from there he rode to Sikeston with two young men.

Miller got in touch at once with Lawrence Hedtendorf, sheriff of DuPage County, and C. W. Reed, State Attorney of Illinois. The officers promised to send a squad to investigate the matter and escort Miller to his home.

The wild tale has all the flavor of a Chicago gang war and rings true in spots. Miller claims to have been an Army Engineer during the World War. He is married and has one daughter, 9 years old, living in Naperville, Ill.

Naperville, Ill., June 3.—Lawrence Miller, Naperville contractor and Deputy Sheriff, missing since May 21, telephoned his wife today from Portageville, Mo., and said he had been kidnaped and beaten and had been held captive until today.

Miller asked his wife to send money and clothes, and State's Attorney Chauncey Reed of DuPage County announced he would send a man to meet Miller at Murphysboro, Ill.

Miller suspects that his captors might have been operators of a still in a barn raided near here recently. The contractor said his men had done some work on the barn and the raid was soon after. He thought the bootleggers might have suspected him of informing the authorities.

WANT 150 GLEANERS IN CLASS NEXT SUNDAY

If you find dozens of your friends wearing small blue and white buttons with the wording "I'll be one of 999" this week, you might think that the wearer is acting in the capacity of publicity agent for a new variety of cure all medicine. But such is not quite the case. The buttons signify that the local Methodists desire to have a total of 999 members present next Sunday in all departments of their Sunday school.

The Gleaners Class, a 100 per cent woman's organization, has established as its goal an attendance of 150 next Sunday. Mrs. Joe Bowman will be teacher of the class in the absence of Chris Francis, regular instructor. All old members, would-be members and visitors are urged to be present to fill the desired quota.

Julius Kennett, a prominent merchant of Kennett, Paul Jones of the Kennett Democrat, and Clyde R. Wellman, District Governor of Lions, of the same city, were in Sikeston Tuesday advertising the ceremonial session of Moolah Temple of Masons of St. Louis in session at Kennett, June 28. These gentlemen honored The Standard with a call.

LAYTON COW BARN BURNS ABOUT 10 A. M. WEDNESDAY

A relatively new, two-room cow barn and general utility shed on the G. J. Layton place on Ruth Street, was destroyed by fire about 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. Mrs. Layton had employed a woman to clean up the lot, intending to have it fenced off and planted to late truck crops.

The woman had started a small fire to burn the accumulated rubbish, and asked Mrs. Layton for the corn cobs scattered about on the premises, saying that the family had no fuel at home. Mrs. Layton readily granted the request and returned to her own duties in the house. About thirty minutes, she was startled to find the barn or shed in flames. Included in the destroyed property were eight bales of hay, a sack of feed bought Tuesday evening, and a quantity of lumber.

Mrs. Layton stated Wednesday afternoon that the fire that morning was the fifth in their neighborhood, and the first to start on the Layton property. A fence and small out-buildings on the M. L. Clayton property nearby were slightly damaged.

Mrs. R. A. Moll and children of Cairo arrived in Sikeston Tuesday evening for an extended visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Shepard.

A MESSAGE TO ADVERTISERS

By Glenn Griswold

—IN THE CHICAGO JOURNAL OF COMMERCE—

The man who goes after business usually gets more than his share of the whole.

Proof of this is to be discovered in a preliminary report of the results of a questionnaire sent to its members by the Illinois Lumber and Material Association. This shows that almost without exception those who spent a reasonable proportion of their gross sales for advertising and promotional work are satisfied with the state of their businesses, while, without any exception, the large number who spent little or nothing last year are thoroughly dissatisfied.

Thus far, replies have been received from 267 dealers representing 275 lumber yards. This is about 40 percent of the membership. Twenty-four of the 267 dealers spent 3 percent or more of their gross sales for advertising and sales promotion in 1929. But two of these reported less business and profit in 1929 than in 1928.

Thirty-nine dealers spent two percent of their gross sales for advertising and a majority of them reported business as good or better in 1929 than in 1928. Eighty dealers spent from one to 1-2 percent of gross receipts on advertising and most of them were dissatisfied with their expenditure last year.

One hundred and twenty-four spent from nothing to one-half of one percent of their gross sales on advertising and everyone of the 124 complained of poor business and unsatisfactory results.

Forty-five of these 124 spent nothing for advertising and their complaints were the loudest, their profits the least and their credit the worst.

CROP CONDITIONS GENERALLY FAVORABLE SAYS REPORT

Southeast Missouri and Northeast Arkansas: Weather conditions have been favorable throughout this section for farm work, and farmers have made excellent progress. The nights, however, have been too cool for cotton to make its best growth. Cotton in this section is as far advanced as it is in East Texas. Stands are better and the crop generally is clean and in good state of cultivation. No rain the past week, but the moisture is sufficient at present. Prospects for good corn and hay crops are excellent. Wheat is beginning to ripen in the Dexter district. The crop is only fair. No damage from disease or insect pests, or adverse weather. This section as a whole is 10 to 15 days farther advanced than it was this date last year.

Mr. and Mrs. Toots Nall have a new arrival at their house by the name of James Arden Nall, weighing 8½ lbs. and who came May 31. The announcement was in the form of a small traveling bag and on the outside said, "Just Arrived", and on the inside was a baby card bearing the real facts. It was a cute announcement.

ROBBERS TAKE DRESSES VALUED AT $500 FROM WHIZ BANG STORE MONDAY NITE

Night prowlers gained entrance to the Whiz Bang Store on Front Street, this city, last Monday night by sawing out two door panels, and proceeded leisurely to pack 60 expensive dresses in stolen Gladstone cases and suit cases before making their departure. The loss was estimated by B. T. Topper, manager of the store, at from $450 to $500.

The robbers first drilled a line of holes along two sides of the back door panel, and then broke out and cut away the remaining thin spaces. This allowed them to unlock the outer door, but the same process had to be repeated on a second door before they gained entrance to the store proper. A long iron bolt was found near the second door and nearby lay a lock which had been pried loose. The visitors then concentrated their efforts upon racks of dresses, working well towards the front of the building. The rack containing about forty $16.95 dresses, is located within ten feet of the front door, and it was from this place that most of the garments were removed.

After selecting their assortment, the robbers carried the loot into a back room and removed the hangers before packing the dresses into a Gladstone case and another suitcase. Topper checked the number of hangers and found 63 in the back room alone. Whether or not the prowlers took additional dresses with hangers, is not known. The loss is not insured.

HARRISON CHIDES G. O. P. CONFEREES FOR TARIFF ANTICS

Washington, June 3.—The export farm debenture amendment to the tariff bill was abandoned by the senate conferees even before its elimination was demanded by the house. Senator Harrison, Mississippi, Democrat, charged in the senate today in opening the Democratic attack on the completed Hawley-Smoot measure.

Harrison vigorously attacked the conference report on the bill, saying that in nearly every case the conferees adopted the highest rate they could under the rules. He charged that out of 143 rate increases voted by the senate in other than agricultural commodities, 118 were adopted by the conferees.

Senator Borah, Idaho, Republican, asked Harrison how long the conferees spent in discussing the debenture plan.

"The senate conferees insisted on receding to the house before the house conferees asked them to," Harrison replied.

"In other words", Borah said, "this great agricultural problem did not occupy the attention of the conferees for more than 30 minutes".

"No longer than 30 seconds", Harrison said. He pointed out that in the wool schedule twenty-eight rates were increased by the senate and the conferees adopted twenty-four of these and compromised on the others. He said, the conferees adopted every one of the twenty-four senate increases in the earthenware schedule.

Harrison declared the reason given by house conferees for insisting on a higher rate on red oil, was that it was made in Cincinnati, home of Speaker Longworth of the house.

CAIRO GOLFERS WIN SUN-DAY FROM SIKESTON

Cairo golfers played the second of a series of matches with the nearby club at home Sunday and won from Sikeston 41 up. There were eighteen visiting players, making four foursomes and a twosome. John D. Rockefeller has been touched by his son-in-law for one million dollars which shows some fathers-in-law are worth having. If one of our sons-in-law would approach us on such a proposition we would turn him down mighty quick and there's a reason.

We don't know who the dog tax gatherer is, but we know heretofore more dogs ran loose in this city than paid the tax. The right sort of dog catcher would kill every one caught on the streets without license tag. No man with a valuable dog will fail to pay the tax and the sooner the other variety is eliminated, the better.

The Standard acknowledges receipt of a couple of turnips sent by Fred Hetlage of Kewanee, one of which measured 18½ inches in circumference. It was sufficient to make a meal for the family. Hetlage wanted us to know that his vicinity could grow big turnips any time of year.

This afternoon at 2:00 o'clock the Democratic rooster will flap his wings at Dexter and crow aloud to let the boys in the sticks know that the Jeffersonian brand of Democracy is once again being proclaimed. The braying ass variety can be turned over to Bishop Cannon and his ilk and let the rooster be our emblem now and henceforth.

The Standard editor is informed by President Chilton of the Southeast Missouri Press Association, that he is on the program for the press meeting to be held June 20 at Greenville and Piedmont. This is nice of Chilton and we expect, at this time, to be present. It may be best to omit this part of the program that all may enjoy the meeting.

Why is it necessary for merchants and tradesmen to go to the expense of paying a heavy per cent each month for collectors trying to get what is owing. Every year The Standard has engaged young people to collect on subscriptions and had little left. We are now sending out statements for the paper and trust to be out no more than postage.

Bishop Cannon hesitates to answer questions propounded by the Senate Lobby Committee at Washington. Harry Sinclair served time in prison for refusal to answer on advice of his attorney. We don't think Bishop Cannon is a bit better than Sinclair, morally or otherwise, and he should be given the same sort of treatment as was given Sinclair if he persists in refusing to answer. Senator Carraway of Arkansas, to speak at Dexter Friday afternoon, upholds the Bishop in his refusal. Carraway is not just what we thought he was.

Some talk has been had in Congress recently of the division of Texas into five States—four in addition to the original State of Texas, as was guaranteed that commonwealth at the time of her admission into the Union might be done without interference from our federal government should the time ever come when her people wished to make such division. The thought is a bit novel, though most schoolboy students of American history know that they have the right to do so if they wish. The thought of eight additional Southern U. S. Senators, an increased number of Congressmen, etc., is somewhat staggering to Eastern politicians, where the balance of power has remained so long, and naturally it would not find favor in such quarters. Indeed it would probably take a considerable campaign of education to make it a popular thought in Texas, which has occupied the proud position of the largest State, etc., for so long that the people might be loath to give it up. Texans often are fond of boasting in the following fashion, "If all the hogs in Texas were one hog he could dig the Panama Canal in three roots and grunt. If all the steers in Texas were one steer, he would stand with his front feet in the gulf of Mexico, his hind feet in Hudson Bay and with his horns punch holes in the moon and with his tail brush the mists off the Aurora Borealis"—and more after the same fashion. Texas would make 220 States the size of Rhode Island and the whole of the New England group would rattle about within her territory like a bean in a cocoon, yet she can count only two votes in the U. S. Senate and has eight less votes in the electoral college than she would have under Garner's plan of division.—Caruthersville Democrat.

MEDICINE WHEN I TOOK KONJOLA"

New Medicine Quickly Banished
Ills of Stomach, Kidneys
And Liver After Others Failed.

MISS VIOLA HOELTGE

"I found the right medicine when I took Konjola," said Miss Viola Hoeltge, 6337 Suburban avenue, St. Louis. "For over a year I was in constant misery from stomach, liver and kidney ailments. No food would be properly digested and I suffered agony from bloating, stomach pains and shortness of breath. Back pains were frequent and painful and I became subject to frequent dizzy spells. Bilious attacks and constipation added to my misery."

"I took many medicines without benefit until I tried Konjola. After a few weeks treatment with this great medicine my health troubles were solved. I no longer bloat after meals and my appetite is excellent. My liver and kidneys quickly yielded to Konjola and I am free from dizzy spells and bilious attacks. I never take cathartics and those splitting headaches are also a thing of the past. I shall always praise Konjola."

Konjola is not a "cure-all"—there is no such thing, but when taken for from six to eight weeks, will produce amazing results. The countless thousands of endorsements of Konjola have proven that it makes good in even the most stubborn cases.

Konjola is sold in Skeston at the Derris drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

AS I SEE IT
By I'm About Town

If you happened to be a native of South Central Africa—a member of one of hundred Aborigine or native tribes—and you did not like your neighbor, you might have one of a dozen or so surefire methods of "fixing" him.

One lock of his hair wrapped in a banana leaf and buried assures you that your enemy will be food for buzzards as soon as the leaf decomposes. If you desire you might make a clay image and place the statue in a swift or slow-moving stream—depending wholly upon how fast or how slow you wished the offender punished. As sure as the sun rises and sets, however, the last race of the image in the stream would indicate that the friend had also breathed his last. The peculiar thing about it, is that it works, for the reason that you have taken particular pains to inform him that he has been placed under the spell.

This, of course, comes under the head of folk lore, and is practiced by those who have not had the advantages of more civilized methods of accomplishing the same end, i. e., taking him for a ride or placing a dram or so of poison in his coffee.

In the German there is a saying to this day which harks back to the days when the blonde giants, Anglo Saxons, sifted through the Black Forest overran the western part of Europe and finally settled in what is now England. The saying is this: "Hexen streich"—or spelling to that effect, meaning a witches stroke. It is used in the modern more or less lightly, a mild invective, yet it exists.

All of which leads us to the present. A Baltimore, Md., woman shoots a 70-year-old man because she was convinced that he had placed her under a hex spell, by driving a nail through her photograph.

She had known him for 20 years. After all then it matters very little whether we live in South Central Australia, Africa or North America. It's what functions above the neck that counts.

Charlie Morris, paper salesman out of St. Louis, brought his recently acquired wife through out city on May 9. He relates that she was quite impressed with the young city here. Skeston does make that impression.

LEGION NOTES

At the meeting Wednesday night of Henry Meldrum Post of the Legion, several definite steps were taken which tend to show the enthusiasm with which the Legionnaires are working.

A committee headed by W. P. Wilkinson is to determine how many and the types of trees which the Post will set out in Legion Square this fall.

Repairs for the drinking fountain have been ordered and it is hoped that public sentiment will assist in protecting this fountain from the vandals who have recently destroyed two mouthpieces and the operating handle on the fountain.

The Post voted to entertain the ladies at a dinner to be given some night next week. There will be special entertainment for the party and those who attend will be assured of good food and lots of laughs.

All known eligibles will be urged to take out membership in the Legion within the next few days as the Post is within five members of exceeding its previous high mark. Those members who sign up before the dinner party next week will be expected to be present when mess call is sounded.

It is practically assured that another July fourth picnic will be held for the Legionnaires and their families, as was done last year, and the scouts are now looking for a promising location.

WANTS $2,000,000,000 BOND ISSUE TO AID UNEMPLOYED

Washington, June 4.—President Hoover was urged today by the National Unemployment League to sponsor a Federal bond issue of from $2,000,000,000 to $3,000,000,000 to be spent in road construction for the relief of unemployment.

Asserting business conditions have not improved during the spring as expected, Darwin J. Meserole, president of the league, recommended to the President expansion of the steps already taken to relieve the business depression.

Rev. A. J. Cutrell of Dwight, Kas., came Tuesday afternoon to be at the bedside of his brother, J. S. Cutrell, who has been seriously ill for some days.

BODY OF PROMINENT OAK RIDGE DOCTOR
FOUND IN FIELD NEAR HOME MONDAY P. M.

Oak Ridge, June 4.—Final rites for Dr. W. K. Statler, 52 years old, prominent Oak Ridge physician, who was found dead in a field on his farm east of here Monday afternoon, were held this afternoon at the Baptist church here of which he was a member. Rev. George Graham of Herrin, Ill., formerly pastor of the local church, conducted the services. Interment was in the Oak Ridge cemetery, where the Mystic Tie Lodge of the Masonic order of this place, aided by the Cape Girardeau Commandery lodge of Knights Templar held services directed by Judge James A. Kinder of Cape Girardeau.

The physician, one of the most active and widely-known in his profession in the district, was found late in the afternoon following his absence from the residence for three hours. Knowledge of his ill health caused members of the family to search for him when he did not return home within an expected time.

United in marriage May 29, 1907, to Miss Iola Hinkle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Hinkle of Oak Ridge, the former now deceased, two sons were born to this union. They were Osler Statler and W. Hinkle Statler, both of Oak Ridge and who are former students of the University of Missouri and the Teachers College at Cape Girardeau, the latter graduating from the Teachers College last week.

BYRD PARTY MEMBER
TELLS HOW MONOTONY
AFFECTED THE MEN

Chicago, June 4.—Raymond Marcola, a Chicago member of Byrd's South Pole expedition, told yesterday how monotonous sometimes life became during their stay in the Antarctic region.

"The cold Antarctic made some of the fellows yield to queer whims," he said. "It made one man play 'California Here I Come' over and over on a talking machine. It nearly drove us mad. Finally we smashed the record. Then we had the trouble of teaching him a new diversion."

WANTS DAMAGES TO PROVE SHE IS NOT A "DRY SNOOPER"

Muncie, Ind., June 4.—Mrs. Clara E. Hutson, of Muncie wants $2000 damages as proof she is not a "dry snooper."

Alleging that Dewey Kennedy, a workman, circulated reports that she caused police to raid the home of a neighbor, where home brew was found, Mrs. Hutson has filed a suit against Kennedy charging slander. The complaint sets out that she is being "laughed at, scorned, talked about, ridiculed and abused as a dry snooper."

Thin, Pale,
Weak

"I HAD been through a bad spell of sickness which left me very weak," says Mrs. Virginia Spruce of Stapleton, Va. "I was pale and felt lifeless, and my strength did not return. I spent most of my time on the bed. I was very nervous, and the least thing upset me. I did not have strength enough to lift a broom. At times I would have bad headaches, which would hurt me until I could hardly see. 'Someone asked me why I did not try Cardui. I had read of it, so I thought I would see what it would do for me. It was really remarkable how I came out. My strength returned, and my health was better than it had been in years. I gained in weight about ten pounds. My color was good, and I ceased to suffer from headaches. I have told my friends about Cardui because I was benefited after taking it.'"

HOOVER CAUTIOUS
IN HIS ATTITUDE
ON TARIFF BILL

Washington, June 4.—President Hoover is going to move cautiously when—and if—the tariff bill is passed by congress and sent him for signature, George Akerson, his secretary, said today.

He said Mr. Hoover plans to consider the contents of the measure "very carefully" and will take no action until he has conferred with tariff experts and studied the reports from the budget bureau, tariff commission and from the various government departments interested in the legislation.

He has ten days to sign the bill and make it a law or veto it after it reaches his desk.

A strange contrast of views on the probable fate of the bill in congress was aired today by opposing leaders as the Democratic-Insurgent coalition sought to delay a final vote in the senate until the end of the week.

Administration leaders, who previously asserted they had sufficient votes to insure passage of the bill in both house and senate, announced they now fear the outcome.

"It looks close," admitted Senator Watson, Indiana, Republican, the floor leader. "It may end in a tie vote."

"The vote will be close," Senator Norris, Republican, insurgent leader, agreed, "but they've got enough votes to put it over."

"The result will be decided by one or two votes," said Senator Simmons, North Carolina, minority leader on the finance committee.

An independent poll has indicated that the bill will pass in the senate by a margin of two votes, or with Vice President Curtis breaking a tie, depending on the attitude of Senator Grundy, Pennsylvania, Republican, credited with having "fathered" many items in the bill. He is now displeased by the measure as a whole.

Forty-three Republicans and five Democrats are known to favor the bill. This would be half of the senate, with a tie resulting if all other senators vote against it. The Democrats favoring it are Senators Fletcher and Trammell of Florida, Broussard and Ransdell of Louisiana and Kendrick of Wyoming.

WOMEN ENCHANTED
BY ROMANTIC KING

Dennis King, who has been hailed as the talking-singing screen's newest apostle of romanticism, is, above all, a gentleman.

While he was working on the production of "The Vagabond King" at Paramount's Hollywood studio, King was asked to tell his ideal of woman-kind.

"First of all," said the famous Broadway musical comedy singer, "she must be a blonde—that is she must have a blonde personality. Many brunettes have it."

Nothing could have been more typically chivalrous of Dennis King than those words. Blondes and brunettes alike will find flattery in them.

And it is well that King's opinion is so all-inclusive, for he is going to gain thousands of admirers among the blondes and brunettes before his great picture "The Vagabond King" is many weeks old. Women just seem to "go for" this dashing, romantic young lyric actor in a great big way.

In "The Vagabond King" Dennis King has a blonde leading lady. She is Jeanette MacDonald, the dazzling charmer of Broadway musical comedy fame, who sang her way into the hearts of film enthusiasts everywhere with her splendid portrayal of the role of Queen Louise in Maurice Chevalier's "The Love Parade."

"The Vagabond King", is based on the operetta of the same name which ran for more than a season on Broadway. The original Rudolph Friml songs will be heard again when the picture comes to the Malone Theatre Thursday and Friday.

SUGAR LOWEST IN TEN YEARS

New York, June 4.—Leading sugar refiners cut their prices one-fifth of a cent today for the second time in a fortnight, reducing the wholesale price to 4½ cents a pound, the lowest in about 10 years. A receiver was appointed today for the Punta Alegre Sugar Co. This is the third large Cuban sugar company to become involved in financial difficulties recently. The sugar market has been depressed for several months by excessive production last year.

ADAM ATE NO APPLE— IT WAS A PINE CONE, SCIENTIST DECLARES

Copenhagen, Denmark, June 4.—It was a pine cone and not an apple that caused Adam's downfall. If you believe Dr. Ditlef Nielson.

Eve, according to the Danish scientist, never handed Adam an apple. Instead, she gave him an Asiatic fruit called "peri", now known as a pine cone.

Dr. Nielson said today he had found a picture dating from Babylonian times showing Adam and Eve under a pine tree with a pine cone. "Peri", he explained, "is known to increase certain emotions and hence must be blamed for original sin".

CONVICTS TO BE USED TO BUILD NEW STATE PEN

Jefferson City, June 4.—The work of building the intermediate penitentiary at Algoa will be done largely by convicts from the Missouri penitentiary. As most of the buildings will be built of concrete, there will be practically no stone work to be done.

The prison has only one inmate who is an expert stone cutter, and it is pointed out that concrete would be cheaper than stone regardless of the great amount of stone available on the site of the new institution.

The stone will be crushed in a prison rock crusher which is already set in place for operation, and the crushed stone used in the concrete mixture.

It is planned to pattern the institution after the intermediate reformatory in New Jersey which is built on the Cottage plan. Instead of having cell houses, the new penitentiary will have barrack-like cottages which will be divided into sleeping rooms. One of the cottages will be divided into cells for disciplinary purposes. The administration building, the cottages, the factories, dining room, hospital and other buildings will all have a goodly amount of space between them.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Benton, Mo.,

June 3rd, 1930

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT,
By the Scott County Court in memory of the late departed Judge Anton Legrand.

Whereas: It has pleased The Great Judge of All to call from his work here, our friend and co-worker, Judge Anton LeGrand, who so faithfully demeaned himself in the performance and execution of his official service since his entrance upon the duties of Associate Judge in the 2nd District of Scott County;

And Whereas: The vacant chair, now draped in mourning, where he so often sat, a reminder of his absence, in its silence, and in midst of subdued voices and softly treading footsteps, sheds a spirit of gloom about the court-room;

And Whereas: The ever present consciousness that his calm face in this community and county, where, during a long life, he has so faithfully walked and wrought will be seen no more, casts the shadows of sorrow about us,

Be It Resolved: That the Scott County Court in its expressions of sympathy to his widow and children and his hosts of friends in their bereavement and grief, enter upon its records a copy of these resolutions, in order that the memory of Anton LeGrand, a citizen, patriot, Judicial Officer and father of a large and affectionate family of surviving children, may be perpetuated as one who lived up to the vows of his religion and his code of manhood, and who proved his sincerity from day to day, in the uprightness of his dealings with his fellow man.

Resolved further: That a copy of these resolutions be sent to his family and a copy be given to each of the County papers.

JOHN W. HEEB,

Presiding Judge

GEO. BUCHANAN,

Associate Judge, County Court of Scott County, Missouri.

STAR IS "COOK" IN MUSICAL PLAY

Nancy Carroll, in her various activities before the camera and microphone, has been a show-girl, a lady's maid, a member of a ladies' orchestra and a sales clerk—but now she is a "kitchen mechanic".

In "Honey", which comes to the Malone Theatre Sunday and Monday, Miss Carroll plays the role of Olivia Dangerfield, a Southern girl who is forced by circumstances to rent her family's plantation mansion to a wealthy woman from the East. Due to unforeseen events Nancy is forced to assume an Irish brogue and fulfill the duties of cook in the kitchen of the mansion. She finally saves the homestead from financial disaster after a series of amusing and romantic episodes.

"Honey" is based on "Come Out of the Kitchen", famous Broadway stage success of several years ago. The play was written by A. E. Thomas from the original novel by Alice Duer Miller. The music was written by Harling and Coslow.

The screen adaptation was written by Herman J. Mankiewicz, veteran scenarist of the Paramount staff.

In the supporting cast of "Honey" are Harry Green as Helton, the comedy detective; Skeets Gallagher as Nancy's brother and the temporary butler; Lillian Roth, ZaSu Pitts, Mitzie Green and Charles Sellon. All have established themselves on the talking screen as veteran comedy character actors.

Stanley Smith, the handsome young actor from Hollywood high school, who was Miss Carroll's leading man in "Sweetie", plays the romantic role in "Honey". Smith was placed under a long-term contract by Paramount after executives of that company analyzed the "Sweetie" reviews of 30 movie critics in thirty of the country's leading cities.

While we are in the right spirit and our heart is right, we wish to acknowledge before God and man our gratefulness for the almost complete recovery of our immediate family. Our daughter, Edna, with her new babe and other three children, have arrived safely in their home in Virginia, near Washington. Charlie is so far recovered as to be permitted to ride out for a short while each day. Mary, another daughter, who withstood a major operation Sunday morning is doing fine. Mrs. Blanton is still shaky and weak, but as soon as the home is clear of children and grandchildren, she'll go to the Ozarks for a few weeks to rest and recuperate. We are all right and as mean as ever.

John Barleycorn may have lost his place in the sun, but he has his moonshine still.—Caruthersville Democrat.

Once upon a time a patient was brought to a hospital on a cot from another county, who had been ill for eight weeks. She was close on to eighteen years of age with neither father nor mother to minister to her wants in her sickness—a brother did the best he could. Pus had gathered in the lung or pleural cavity and it was necessary to cut out a section of rib and insert a tube for drainage purposes. Now, this patient had neither underclothes nor a gown to put on after the operation and another patient furnished a gown. This girl's body was in such condition that soap and disinfectants had to be used before she could be placed on the operating table. Word was given to a few that old and worn gowns were needed for this girl and they came promptly. Twenty-four hours after the operation she was clean and comfortable and in due course of time her body will be mended and she can return to the farm. This is another case where God will have to pay the bill for no money was had and no questions asked, but surgeons and nurses will care for and feed her for the good of humanity. What have you done to help this sort of charity work?

God Bless the Candidate

The lark is up to meet the sun,
The dove coos to its mate,
And everywhere we meet and greet
The smiling candidate.

Not victory's wreath, but gloom's defeat,
May stare him in the eye;
But pat his back and praise him for
The spirit of the try.

He might not win, but on the skids
Take a toboggan slide;
Tho' fleeting years may dim the past,
That memory will abide.

But if he wins, it might be said:
Because this race he ran,
His life a benediction proved,
That blessed his fellow man.

So, voter, go and vote for him,
And you'll be glad you went;
Not so, if like Achilles, you
Sit sulking in your tent.

Be glad you're in America
Where each may have his say;
And by your balloting, exclaim:
God bless Election Day.

Then, when at night, you kneel down
In prayer to concentrate,
Before you rise, don't fail to pray:
God bless the candidate.

The Woman's Club of Sikeston have abandoned the home carnival that was intended for an early date. We believe this was a good idea as merchants would have been solicited for donations of late and they have been milked dry. Give the merchant a rest from panhandlers and solicitors as all are having a hard time to get by after selling their wares without giving them away.

The W. C. T. U. of St. Louis has resolved against women wets. It might not be out of order to state that women have a perfect right to be wet as some have of being dry. We prefer 'em dry.

Newspapers report England astir on eve of the Epsom Downs race in that country, and we might add that we in the United States are astir for a long time over the Ups and Downs race.

We believe the theater-going public is pretty well fed-up on the Oriental dance with its obscenity and indecency, and that Hollywood deserves to be rebuked for continuing to force it upon a long-suffering and disgusted public. It may still have an appeal to the habitues of the "Red Light" district, but cultured people revolt at its nasty suggestion of beastly passion. It is a relic of barbarism inherited from the Spanish-American War, and the remuneration our civilization received for libeating the Philippines from despotism rule. People who behave so badly perhaps did not deserve to be snatched from beneath the iron heel of a tyrant. Anyway, we got stung.—Caruthersville Democrat.

The question nepotism has been raised in the schools of Poplar Bluff. The Attorney General of the State has construed the law to bar members or kinship of a School Board member, and the Prosecuting Attorney of Butler County has agreed with him. Sikeston is due for a shake-up of teachers if this decision holds and the Board should look into the matter now.

The Missouri State Board of Agriculture calls attention to the nothing less than wonderful development of the ice cream industry in the United States, not less than six billion pounds of milk being utilized annually in the commercial manufacture of this food, formerly looked upon as a sometimes luxury. Secretary Jewell Mayes remarks that ice cream has developed from a once-a-year-picnic treat to a daily diet, much to the benefit of consumers and greatly to the advantage of the dairy farming industry.

For the information of many inquirers in different sections of Missouri, Secretary Jewell Mayes of the State Board of Agriculture today made public his reply to the courteous request of Secretary Frank A. Wightman of the Monett, Mo., Commercial Club, asking for the services of a professional wolf trapper. The Missouri State Board of Agriculture has no available appropriation or service for the trapping and eradication of wolves now menacing sheep and poultry, having had no appropriation therefor since July 1, 1925. The wolf problem is evidently becoming more and more serious in several sections of Missouri.

ARBUTUS CLASS OF THE BAPTIST SUNDAY SCHOOL

The Arbutus Class of the Baptist Sunday School met with Mrs. J. T. Baty, with Mrs. Herschel Randolph, Mrs. Hubert Boyer and Mrs. Baty as hostesses on Monday evening, June 2, with thirty members and guests present.

After the business meeting, interesting games were played and delicious refreshments served.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Wade Moore with Mrs. E. B. Moore and Mrs. Wade Moore as hostesses. This meeting will be July 7. All members are urged to attend.

MISSOURI POST TIMBER

State Forester Frederick Dunlap of the Missouri State Board of Agriculture has made a public statement, counseling farmers as to the most successful plantings for growing fence posts, of which the following is a condensed summary:

Osage Orange is the most durable wood for posts, while Black Locust, Red Cedar and Mulberry stand just below it.

Black Locust is sometimes seriously injured by borers, and at present we know no way to prevent these losses.

Native Red Cedar affords a valuable supply of posts in some parts of Missouri, but it is not planted because it harbors the cedar rust of apples.

The Osage Orange and Mulberry thus afford the best species we have for growing fence posts on Missouri farms.

Fourteen States contributed to the big summer opening at the Chilli-cothe Business College last Monday, the more distant ones being North Carolina, Colorado, Mississippi, Kentucky and Louisiana.

CARUTHERSVILLE BOX FACTORY TOTAL LOSS

Caruthersville, June 2.—Fire this morning destroyed the box shop department of the Dillman egg case factory here and this afternoon was threatening to spread to a nearby sawmill and a yard of drying material. The fire is believed to have started near a saw and is said to have come up through the floor near this machine. The flames quickly spread to all parts of the building before the mill and town fire departments could swing into action.

All workers fled from the blazing mill. The mill is said to be the largest egg case factory in the world. Although only one building was destroyed, it was said the mill probably would close.

About 200 employees, both men and women, will be thrown out of work.

Early this afternoon it was estimated the damage amounted to $150,000, and the loss will be considerably larger unless the spread of the flames is checked.

Most records in the office, which was destroyed, were saved. Frank Dillman, vice president of the Associated Industries of Missouri, is the owner of the company.

YOUNG WOMAN TELLS OF AUTO TRIP WITH PASTOR

St. Louis, June 3.—The Rev. Alonzo L. Shoemaker, former pastor of the Edwards Street Pentecostal Mission at Alton, Ill., is expected to testify in his own defense in City Court there this afternoon in his trial on a charge of abducting a 19-year-old girl, a former member of his choir.

The complaining witness against him, Miss Bernice Ford, now 21 years old, gave her testimony yesterday in a court room crowded with members of the mission, of which the Rev. Mr. Shoemaker formerly was the head. Many of those present were women, some of whom took their babies with them and the crying of the infants at one point led Judge Yager to ask them to leave the children at home.

Miss Ford testified that in April, 1928, the pastor persuaded her to accompany on an automobile trip to Missouri and suggested that she tell her mother she was going to St. Louis to look for work. They drove to Morley, Mo., in his automobile and stayed there over night, continuing the next day to Charleston, Mo., and returned home after spending the night there, she testified.

Registers of hotels at Morley and Charleston were introduced showing that a man with a name similar to that of the Rev. Mr. Shoemaker had stayed at the hotels on the dates mentioned by Miss Ford, but the hotelkeepers were unable to identify him as the man who had registered there.

The defense introduced a letter and an affidavit made by Miss Ford, to the effect that she had not accompanied the clergyman on the trip. She testified that she had agreed to make the affidavit and write the letter at the pastor's request on his promise to marry her.

The defendant and two young women who had played saxophones in his church orchestra disappeared from Alton last fall and were arrested in Florida several months ago.

He was returned to Alton and indictments charging him with abduction in these cases also were returned. The young women, Miss Annette Harris and Miss Edith Hankins, each 21 years old, were in the courtroom and exchanged smiles with the clergyman. The cases in which they will be prosecuting witnesses have not yet been brought to trial.

Abduction, the enticing of a woman or girl from her home, is an offense punishable in Illinois by a penitentiary sentence of from one to ten years.

The Rev. Mr. Shoemaker, ousted from the Edwards Street Mission, now lives at Nutwood, 20 miles north of Alton. His wife and two children live in Alton.

WEATHER MAN EXPLAINS WHAT "CYCLONE" MEANS

A "cyclone" in the science of meteorology is not a violent and destructive twisting windstorm or "twister" so greatly dreaded in some parts of the United States. That sort of storm is properly called a tornado. A cyclone, weather forecasters explain, is an extensive system of winds over an area of low atmospheric pressure as measured by the barometer. It is represented on the synoptic charts published by the Weather Bureau of the Department of Agriculture by arrows showing wind directions and a series of wavy lines resembling the contour lines on a map. These lines pass thru points having equal barometric pressure at the time indicated the chart. Other similar sets of lines represent areas of high pressure or regions of "anticyclones". A cyclone may cover several States, and as a rule moves in an easterly direction across the country.

"The reason why cyclones and anticyclones or the 'lows' and 'highs' of the weather chart have such an important bearing on weather forecasting", says Alfred Judson Henry, of the Weather Bureau, "is because of the pronounced contrast in the weather associated with each. If it is known that a cyclone is advancing upon a region, it is assured with in slight variations, depending on the season, that the winds will be stronger than the average, the sky will be cloudy and there will be rain or snow according to the time of year, and the temperature will be higher than usual. After the cyclone has passed and the anticyclone has come on, precipitation of rain or snow cases, the sky, as a rule, clears, the winds shift to a northeasterly or westerly quarter, and the temperature falls. The northerly component of the wind continues for several days and then shifts to an easterly or southerly quarter, thus indicating the approach of another cyclone."

Ephie Carpenter, farmer of near Dealtown on route 3, was in a serious condition today as the result of being bitten by a rattlesnake yesterday evening about dusk.

Carpenter was stacking brush in a cut-over field. The snake, coiled beneath a brush pile, struck him on the left hand. Carpenter and a companion stopped long enough to burn the brush pile and kill the snake. The injured man was then brought to Poplar Bluff for treatment. Today his entire arm was badly swelled. He will recover.—Poplar Bluff Republican.

Johns, of Gideon, Mo., died Tuesday evening between Pigott and this city while en route to this city for an emergency operation for accidental gunshot wounds inflicted by an older brother. Carlis was shot just below the heart when a gun in the hands of his brother was accidentally discharged as the two boys were shooting rats that were running out of an old house which was being torn down.

Jere Caverno, Sr., Allen Mocabee and Mr. Pate of Sikeston, were at work on the Johns' place, when the unfortunate accident occurred.

Ten of the men who have occupied the presidency were owners of slaves at one time or another during their lives. They were Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Jackson, Tyler, Polk, Taylor, Johnson and Grant. The first eight of these were slave owners in the full sense of the term. Andrew Johnson bought a few slaves whom he kept as personal servants, but he never sold them. Ulysses S. Grant was at one time joint owner of at least one slave, but he never either bought or sold a slave. After his marriage his father-in-law presented him and his wife with a slave boy.

RESTORATION OF OLD WILLIAMSBURG

By J. E. Jones

Williamsburg, Va., May 27.—You don't need sets of resolutions opposing the plans of all recent Presidents of the United States for a smaller navy to feel patriotic here. You don't need to scold your neighbor and frown upon him when he fails to hop to his feet at the first notes of the band when it plays "The Star Spangled Banner" to feel the pride of country here. You don't need to believe in war as a means of preserving peace in this wonderful section of old Virginia, where America began to solve its problems when the first English settlement came to Jamestown, six miles away, over 300 years ago.

If I could rub a lucky old lantern that would make a wish come true I could ask for nothing better than to have some of my intolerant super-patriotic friends here with me in Williamsburg this beautiful early summer day, to see what I have seen and feel the pride and joy of our country in witnessing the process of the "Restoration" of this small city. More than forty public buildings and private Colonial residences which stood before the Revolution will become a part of the restored Williamsburg—for Williamsburg is being rebuilt and reconstructed in order to make it as nearly as possible "just like it was in Colonial times".

Let me tell you (I know) that strange thrills chase up and down your spine, in this quiet, peaceful section of Virginia where liberty was born. There is no artificial stimulus needed here. You simply look up and down old Duke of Gloucester street, and murmur silently: "Thank God, that I, and my people who preceded me, belonged to all that this represents". "And to think," you add, "that all this sacred historical ground, and its buildings, are to be turned back so that it will be like it was more than two and a half centuries ago".

First there was Jamestown, "with golden memories",—which you can see today, was a poor location for the first settlers from England to attempt to occupy with their homes. In time town moved "bag and baggage" to "The Middle Plantation", away from unhealthy swamps and lowlands, to the summit of the ridge where waters divide, and flow in opposite directions off to the James and York rivers. Thus Williamsburg became the successor, and replaced Jamestown.

It became the Colonial Capital, ruled over by English governors, including Nicholson, Spotswood, Dinwiddie and Lord Dunsmore, who were sustained by the House of Burgesses and the Council. History and fiction revel in the grandeur of the grand men and the elegance of the elegant ladies of ancient Williamsburg. The ghosts of those gorgeous days, as Mary Johnston describes them in her delightful novels, dance gaily before your vision as you halt your motor and try to recall what you know about Williamsburg—the old and the magnificent.

There are building operations in progress, all about you. It does not take you long to understand what is going on. Simply stated: Rev. Dr. W. A. R. Goodwin is the Rector of Bruton Parish church, the plans of which were furnished by Governor Alexander Spotswood 220 years ago. Dr. Goodwin was big enough and broad enough to undertake to turn Williamsburg aside from the jazzy, hectic speedy, maddening pace of the present day and age, and by reverse evolution restore the scenes, at least, that existed when William and Mary College was built, and granted a Royal charter, and furnished a Royal Coat of Arms, Dr. Goodwin told John D. Rockefeller, Jr., his "dream". Mr. Rockefeller is not troubled with the sort of emotions that prompt the new-rich to do eccentric things, because his father arranged that she should be born rich. Just to know, but apparently John D. how the rest happened I do not claim Rockefeller, Jr., distributed his surplus millions very wisely, and well. Anyhow, here I am in Williamsburg—"thrilled pink", as a couple of young ladies I like, might say. And as my ancestors were participants in the early American adventures I'm delighted that "Goodwin & Rockefeller" got together in the marvelous undertaking for the "Restoration" of Colonial Williamsburg. The new "Raleigh Tavern" is almost completed. Bruton Parish church always has been kept up, and it typifies and glorifies the past and the present as an American church that is entitled to the same affection and reverence that the people of the Old World have for their cathedrals.

King James I left his mark on Williamsburg, as in the year 1617 he authorized the bishops and clergy of England to make collections "for the

erecting of some churches and schools for the education of the children of those barbarians in Virginia". A hundred years later one of the principal buildings of William and Mary college became an Indian school. James sent silkworms to Virginia and offered a bounty for silk cloth manufactured here. The planters found the cultivation of tobacco more profitable, but many of the mulberry trees, hoary with age, are still standing—silent sentinels of an age when America did not count for much in the affairs of the world. The countryside from Williamsburg to Yorktown is gay, these early summer days, with the beautiful yellow flowers of Scotch broom. Some good old Englishman or Scotchman may have introduced the shrub into Colonial America long, long ago. One theory is that the seed may have been brought over from England in feed and hay for the cattle. Boxwood hedges are much in evidence in Williamsburg, and additional box-trees are being brought in to add to the charm that attaches itself to these beautiful evergreens, brought from England, and preserved in certain Colonial locations like Williamsburg, and at Mount Vernon and Gunston Hall, where George Washington and George Mason lived and were neighbors. Mary and William college campus carries with great dignity many evidences of age and colonial grandeur, and its huge live oaks, sycamores, locust, maple and elm trees fit perfectly into the admirable setting.

The main street of Williamsburg is Duke of Gloucester street, having been named in 1705 in honor of Queen Anne's eldest son. In this same year the General Assembly met for the first time in the new Capitol building.

William and Mary college has been the connecting link that has held old Williamsburg together, and preserved its legends, traditions, history and most of all—sentiment. Beginning in 1700 the first college building was used as headquarters of the Colonial government, and the General Assembly met in the building until the Capitol building was finished in 1705.

The main building of the college of William and Mary, started in 1695, has been burned three times, but its thick walls have never fallen. The President's house was erected in 1732 and since that time it has housed every president of the college. Lord Cornwallis had his headquarters here in 1781 on his way to Yorktown. Brefferton hall was originally built in 1732 and used as an Indian school, for those "barbarians" whom King James I wanted educated. These three buildings, noble with age, and rich in their record of service, are powerful reminders of the character and sturdiness that belongs to Williamsburg. The college has prospered in recent years under the very able guidance of Dr. J. A. C. Chandler, and in the 10 or 11 years since he became president, the enrollment has increased from 150 students to more than 3500.

William and Mary college stands at one end of Duke of Gloucester street. Three-quarters of a mile away, at the end of the same street, was the old Colonial Capitol, the rebuilding of which has been begun. It will be as near a replica as possible of Virginia's Colonial Capitol under the British.

In Colonial days there was only one great college in the South—with Harvard in the North. All the men whose names are illustrious in Southern history of that period had been sent to William and Mary college, and they also attended Bruton Parish church. Washington, Jefferson, John Marshall, George Wythe, James Monroe, Henry Clay, John Tyler, Benjamin Harrison, Edmund Randolph and hundreds of others were educated here.

How much Mr. Rockefeller will give to Williamsburg no one knows, except that it will amount to several million dollars. Most of the buildings and sites of old Williamsburg, including nearly all of the buildings which line both sides of the three-quarter-mile thoroughfare of Duke of Gloucester street, have been purchased for the "Restoration". Both sides of the street will be restored. That is only part of the story, as hundreds of thousands of dollars will be spent in the improvements and the restoration in the rest of this city of 2500 inhabitants.

Even the poles erected to carry telephone and electric light wires will be removed and the wires put underground. A new highway will be built to relieve the Duke of Gloucester street as the main artery of travel, so that it will become a nice old Colonial street, once more.

The Virginia Gazette was founded in Williamsburg by William Parks,

August 6, 1736. But, like other necessities, the newspaper passed into a long slumber following the decision of Thomas Jefferson, when he became governor of Virginia in 1779, to move the State capital to Richmond. This change was carried into effect the following year. But the Virginia Gazette has been restored, and when I called to pay my respects, its editor, J. A. Osborne, generously presented me with a handsomely printed and ably edited copy of "Volume I, Number I, new Series", of the Gazette, dated January 10, 1930. Late copies of the Gazette, and changed conditions of Williamsburg indicate that its presses will never again fail to supply the paper to the people of this part of old America.

Jamestown, Williamsburg and Yorktown contributed the highest spots in Colonial history, outside of New England, where other chapters of the great adventures of our forefathers were engraved in the heart of America. Fortunately Williamsburg just "pegged along" for more than a hundred years as a small educational town, which makes it possible to restore it in the way in which it existed in Colonial days. Jamestown was first. Yorktown witnessed the fulfillment of the vision of a new people who triumphed over their oppressor. Williamsburg was IT in Colonial days. Three Colonial governors were buried here. For more than a hundred years before the United States was created, Williamsburg was the seat of Colonial government.

So, as we have seen with our own eyes the great plan under way for the restoration of Williamsburg, we have tried to imagine something of the effect it will have on future generations. Millions of people will turn this way to visit the birthplace of the Republic. It ought to steady them a little at least, as they recognize the importance of events at Williamsburg, and Jamestown, and then go on to the Surrender Ground at Yorktown—all within a radius of about 20 miles. After viewing the picture the conclusion is inevitable that what the country needs most is more preachers like Dr. Goodwin and more millionaires like Mr. Rockefeller.

CONVICT ASKS FREEDOM FOR AN INVENTION

Joilet, Ill., June 2.—John King, an aged convict, inventor of an airplane propeller of revolutionary design, has refused all monetary offers, insisting that when society releases him from prison, it will receive the benefits of his discovery.

Though King has been incarcerated for 15 years and has never seen a modern airplane, the United States Navy, Henry Ford and the Guggenheim Foundation have communicated with him about the propeller.

The original idea for his invention came in a dream while he was in solitary confinement, King said. He worked for five years on plans. After Maj. Harry C. Hill became warden of the State penitentiary, King was permitted the use of the prison workshop to complete a model.

His discovery is a multiple propeller designed to utilize every ounce of horsepower, giving 90 per cent efficiency instead of 40 per cent as in the present types. There are four blades, each connected separately to a hollow central shaft. As the outer shaft revolves, the blades move back and forth along the length of the shaft.

At maximum speed each blade will make 1000 trips in a minute, feathering automatically in the direction of flight and changing to the proper drawing pitch at the point of maximum pull.

Maj. Hill said King has refused several offers for his invention, insisting the price is his freedom. He has been in prison 15 years and has 13 years more to serve on the present term, his fourth. Psychologists say he has a "criminal type of mind".

Sir Hubert Wilkins Discovers 540,000 Square Miles

(1) Captain Sir Hubert Wilkins. (2) Members of the second Wilkins aerial expedition to the Antarctic, left to right: Orval Porter, engineer; Al Cheesman and Parker Cramer, pilots, and Captain Sir Hubert Wilkins. (3) One of the airplanes in which Captain Wilkins flew more than 6,000 miles in the Antarctic. He was the first to fly in that region. (4) One of the striking air views of the Antarctic. Captain Wilkins has made a complete photographic record of his pioneering flights in the Far South.

"I'm not interested in doing what other people have done or going where others have gone. I want to do what others haven't done and go where no one else has gone before."

Here is the creed of the true explorer. The speaker is Captain Sir Hubert Wilkins—one who, from his record of achievement as a scientist and explorer, is especially qualified to speak for his clan.

Adventure and romance are not dead!

Captain Wilkins has lived up to the creed of the true explorer. In 17 years of exploration work in the Polar regions he has seen more land never before observed by human eyes than any other man. The figure is astounding—fully 540,000 square miles of land in the Arctic and Antarctic that he was the first to see. Much of this vast acreage he has recorded for posterity in maps and pictures.

Some of this territory he saw first on foot. Then, in more recent years he saw the same land—and a great deal more—from the air. In 1928, with the late Carl Ben Eielson as his pilot, he flew from Point Barrow, Alaska, to Spitzbergen. Fully 1,200 miles of the 2,300 miles covered on this trip comprised straight line flying over territory never before seen. In two aerial expeditions to the Antarctic his straight line flying over land not previously observed totaled 1,500 miles.

It is figured that in flying of this sort, the eyes can take in 100 miles on either side of the course, making 200 miles in all. Multiply 200 by 2,700, which is the total of his straight line flying over previously unobserved territory in both the Arctic and Antarctic, and we get the 540,000 figure.

Captain Wilkins has tramped on foot over a total of 5,000 miles of Arctic wastes. The total mileage of his flights in the Arctic is 15,000, 10 per cent of which was over territory never before seen. In the Antarctic Captain Wilkins has flown a total of 6,000 miles, 25 per cent of which was over previously unknown land.

"And," observed Captain Wilkins, "although I've been through my full share of difficulties, I've never had any occasion to ask for help."

First to Fly in Antarctic

Captain Wilkins has conducted two aerial exhibitions into the bleak Antarctic. On the first, late in 1928, he was the first to fly in the Antarctic and his main discovery was that Graham Land was a group of islands separated from the Antarctic Continent by an ice filled channel, as against the former theory that Graham Land was a continuous body of land and part of the Antarctic Continent.

The expedition's chief flight lasted 9 hours. About 1,200 miles of hitherto unknown land were covered on this flight alone. With Captain Wilkins on the expedition were the late Lieutenant Eielson, Joe Crosson, pilot, and Orval Porter, expert aviation mechanic.

In the fall of 1929 Captain Wilkins set out on his second Antarctic aerial expedition. His aides this time were Parker D. Cramer, pilot; Al Cheesman, pilot, and Porter. The expedition, in a few short months, pushed back the Antarctic Continent by about 8 degrees, discovered five new islands, charted about 1,200 miles of coastline, completed the location of 12 suitable points for meteorological stations, determined that Charcot Land is an island and not part of the mainland, as supposed, and obtained some valuable and new biological data on Antarctic life.

Great things are planned by scientists and explorers for the immediate years ahead. A vast concentration of scientific brain and man power is projected for 1932 when an extensive International Expedition will get under way. This project has the backing of great scientific organizations and societies and already many countries have signified their wish to be partners in the undertaking.

Captain Wilkins' immediate part in the International Expedition's work will be the carrying out in the summer of 1931 of his much discussed submarine trip across the North Pole, making his way underneath the ice. Plans for this trip in a submersible vessel are rapidly taking form.

"I'm firmly convinced this submersible vessel trip is the safest thing I've

Outstanding Features of Sir Hubert Wilkins' Career

He has seen for the first time more land than any other explorer.

He was first to fly in the Antarctic.

He has flown more than 15,000 miles in the Arctic.

He has flown more than 6,000 miles in the Antarctic.

He has added to the known world 540,000 square miles.

He has had many narrow escapes but has never had to ask for help.

He insists that his submarine trip to the North Pole is "the safest thing I have planned to do in 15 years."

planned to do in 15 years," said Captain Wilkins. "I actually believe it's safer than flying. Of course, there are doubters who scoff at the idea, but the ridicule of these people doesn't bother me. I'm used to that. Why, as few years ago as 1919 people everywhere said it was absolutely out of the question for an airplane to fly over the Pole."

"Just as people changed their minds about the airplane, so they are changing their minds about the submarine and the chances for using it in exploration work in the Arctic."

Every Safety Factor Planned

"Every feature of the proposed trip is being gone into. Every safety factor is being worked out. We are preparing for every possible emergency."

"From my Arctic and Antarctic experience I know you never find a piece of ice more than 20 miles across. Thus we would be able to come up within 10 miles if and when we go under such a large piece of ice. In other words we would be able to rise within 10 miles of any given spot in the Arctic Ocean."

"We will also have methods for cutting our way right up through an ice barrier, if necessary—a telescopic conning tower, drills, and other apparatus operated from the inside."

"Our maximum traveling speed will be 4 miles an hour under the ice. We will have a fuel range of 7,000 miles which will provide an ample margin of safety for our trip of about 2,200 miles. I know the North Pole is navigable. We will not go deeper than 300 feet."

"Our work will directly tie in with the proposed aims of the International Expedition. Scientists want me to proceed with this expedition to better determine what conditions man must contend with in the heart of the Arctic—to pave the way for the International Expedition so they will carry on with the right tools for effective work."

"It will be our aim to make a thorough study of the region so that we can inform the International Expedition of the difficulties to expect, the dangers to avoid, the equipment to carry and how to go."

"Another important objective will be to make a preliminary test of the possibility of developing trade routes across the Arctic with submersible vessels. If it is eventually found practical for commercial submersibles to make their way underneath the ice, trade in the Far North could be kept up for at least 10 months in the year instead of the mere four months, as at present."

It is in the science of meteorology that Captain Wilkins is particularly interested. He visions the time when the North and South Poles will be surrounded by meteorological observation stations which will cooperate with the stations in the more temperate zones in the study of atmospheric conditions with the idea of making long-range weather forecasts.

"It is known," Captain Wilkins said, "that there is a direct relationship between conditions in the Arctic and Antarctic and conditions in other parts of the world. But much work remains to be done to determine the full scope and strength of the influence the North and South Poles exert on the weather of other sections."

Captain Wilkins started his polar exploration work in 1913 when he joined the Canadian Arctic Expedition of Vilhjalmur Stefansson, another famous explorer. Stefansson's expedition was made up of a northern and southern group.

His Career With Stefansson

Captain Wilkins served with Stefansson for three years. Although he was born on the southern edge of the tropics in Australia, he showed himself well fitted for work in the North and became one of the most efficient men on the expedition.

Stefansson's aide and photographer then entered the World War. Joining the Australian forces, he went to the western front in France as a photographer. He was promoted to Captain, was placed in command of the Australian airplanes, was cited several times for bravery and at the end of the war was cited by the Commander-in-Chief of the Australian forces as the combination of the bravest and most useful man of that entire great army.

After the World War he began to plan his own polar work in earnest. In 1919 he made his first trip to the Antarctic as second in command of the British Imperial Antarctic Expedition. The expedition did its exploring by foot and by boat. It was beset by great hardships.

Knighted by King George

Captain Wilkins continued his polar work. It was his aim to fly across the Arctic. He encountered many difficulties in his efforts to accomplish this but he was finally successful in 1928 when he and Eielson made their memorable flight from Alaska to Spitzbergen. They were the first and are still the only men who have flown the entire way across the Polar Sea from the one continent to the other. He was knighted by the King of England for this achievement. It was in the same year that he started on his first aerial expedition into the Antarctic.

Because of the great public interest in the polar regions Captain Wilkins is often called on to speak over the radio on his experiences there, his latest radio talk being from New York on May 28 over WEAF and 29 associated NBC stations as the feature of the Mobil Oil Hour.

Captain Wilkins, who in 18 years has never lived for more than 6 weeks in any one house, now is in New York City laying plans for his submarine trip in the Arctic. He expects to board the Graf Zeppelin when she arrives in the United States early in June and make the return journey with her.

PLANE FALLS UPSIDE DOWN IN RIVER. THREE SAVE SELVES

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 4.—Three airmen who kicked their way through the bottom of a plane after it fell upside down into the Hudson River were under treatment in a hospital here today.

Owen G. Harned, 31 years old, New York, salesman for the Curtiss-Wright Company; Stewart R. Reed, 37, and Augustine Fairchild, 31, Curtiss-Wright employees, were flying above the river at low altitude last night when the plane turned over and fell. After they had saved themselves from drowning by knocking out the bottom of the plane they were rescued from the wreckage by two rivermen.

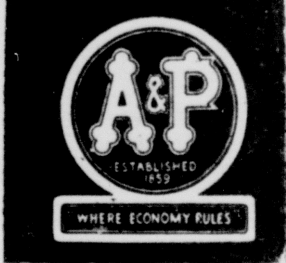

Harned suffered a broken leg. Reed's right arm was broken and Fairchild suffered a broken rib.

Cottonseed meal has been found to be rich in vitamin G, the vitamin necessary for the prevention of pellagra, a nutritional disease of people fairly common in some parts of the South. The discovery was made by research workers in the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils, United States Department of Agriculture, while studying the value of cottonseed meal in the nutrition of animals. Cottonseed meal was found, also, to be rich in vitamin B, the vitamin which prevents beriberi, a disease of people.

CAPTURE THREE NEGRO CAR THIEVES NEAR HERE, TRIO WANTED IN BELZONI, MISSISSIPPI

Three negroes, giving their names as Jimmie Cox, 20, of Jackson, Miss., Clifton Jones, 23, also of that city, and "Chinie" Short of New Orleans, were arrested on suspicion Wednesday afternoon between Sikeston and Morley by Constable Brown Jewell and Deputy Constable Dick Hopper.

The trio was taken before the prosecuting attorney, M. E. Montgomery, who ordered them remanded to jail pending investigation. Conflicting stories as to the origin of the car led to a telephone call to the Pate Motor Company at Jackson, Miss., where W. T. Pate informed the Scott County officers that the car, a 1929 2-door Ford Coach had been issued to J. W. Brown of Belzoni, Miss. Montgomery checked details of the story told by the negroes and obtained information from Sheriff T. J. Gilmer of Belzoni that the car had been stolen recently from the Stone Motor Company warehouse.

Constable Jewell was notified by the Mississippi sheriff that one of the boys held here was wanted on four counts for stealing automobiles in that district. Jewell expects to leave this evening (Thursday) for Mississippi with the prisoners and car. Sheriff Gilmer explained in a wire message that he was very busy at present with court duties and requested Jewell to make the transfer.

MAD DOG KILLED WEDNESDAY MORNING

A white bull dog belonging to Harry McGee was shot and killed Wednesday about noon, after an exciting chase starting in the southwest part of town and terminating near Matthews garage. Dr. L. B. Adams removed the animal's head and instructed officers in sending it to the State laboratory for rabies examination.

The dog was first noticed near the R. E. Limbaugh place. Then it was found snapping and biting the blooded bird dogs belonging to Milem Limbaugh. Brown Jewell and R. E. Limbaugh gave chase and shot the animal, causing death, near the Matthews garage on Malone Avenue.

AIKEN CANNING COMPANY SUING SKESTON MEN

The suit of the Aikens Canning Company against certain Sikeston people charging a breach of contract was to have been called at Jackson today, but in the absence of C. L. Malone on army duty at Fort Crooks, Neb., president of the Chamber of Commerce, and a party to the suit, a delay will be asked by the defense until such time as Mr. Malone can be present.

This is an after effect of the peculiar fire that destroyed the Sikeston-Aiken Canning plant in this city a couple of seasons ago.

The trial last year resulted in a hung jury.

A play will be given by the teacher and pupils of the school in the Calf Ribs neighborhood next Friday night. A large crowd is expected, as all the parents will want to come out and see their child act better than the rest.—Commercial Appeal.

BALL TEAM TO DONIPHAN SUNDAY

Sikeston will entertain the Doniphan Club at Doniphan Sunday, according to Tom Malone, manager. Just who will start for Sikeston in the mound position was not known definitely, although Big Burrus will probably have the honor.

Doniphan claims to have a rejuvenated team this year, whatever that means, and the locals will take their regular string of sluggers in event the threat is fulfilled.

One of the high spots of the baseball season is scheduled for June 15, when the Memphis Booster squad invades the local camp.

The Frisco Club promises to bring a large crowd of rooters and hopes that other division points along the road will respond with crowds. The tentative line-up sent this week to Manager Tom Malone follows:

Simmons, lf; Loeffel, 3b; Owen, 2b; D. Merrill, ss; Brewer or Meadows, 1b; Ledford, rf; McKee or Kildrum, cf; Farrell or Long, cf; Scruggs or Meadows, p. Utility players, Coody, C. Merrill and H. SCOUTS ON ANNUAL TRIP THURSDAY A. M.

Eighteen Sikeston Boy Scouts, accompanied by Scoutmaster Wilbur Ensor and their troop leaders embarked early Thursday morning for a two weeks' encampment at Irondale, Mo. The trip was made in Potashnick's big truck.

Each of the boys carried a huge "duffle bag" crammed to the top with necessary equipment.

The Irondale encampment belongs to the St. Louis Council and has been used by Southeast Missouri Scouts for the past several years. It is hoped that with the present Scout Drive for a Southeast Missouri Council, that another camp can be purchased and equipped for the exclusive use of the local district.

CAPE GIRARDEAU CLUB HERE FOR SUNDAY GOLF MATCH

Much is at stake in the coming golf tourney scheduled for Sunday afternoon on the local links. The Cape Girardeau team has not been defeated this season in the Southeast Missouri round-robin tournament, and the Sikeston boys are primed to turn the trick this Sunday afternoon. Cape Girardeau still has a match with Poplar Bluff on the bluff hills and a defeat of the Cape Club there will work wonders for Sikeston's chances of winning the cup.

In the "if" column is this state of affairs: If Sikeston can finish the season without a defeat at the hands of Cape Girardeau and Charleston, and Cape is defeated at Poplar Bluff, the locals get the honors.

SCOTT COUNTIANS AGAIN ON THE AIR OVER KFVS

The second Scott County hour to be broadcast over Station KFVS at Cape Girardeau is scheduled for 10 to 11 o'clock Saturday, June 7. DAIRYING
By Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S.
Dr. LeGear is a graduate of Ontario Veterinary College, 1892. Thirty-eight years of veterinary work. Eminent authority on diseases and raising of dairy cows and other livestock and poultry. Nationally known lecturer, writer and author.

HOW TO CHOOSE A PROFITABLE DAIRY COW

Dairying is the largest revenue producing department of the livestock industry of the United States. The products made from milk of our dairy cows, which include butter, cheese, ice cream, condensed milk, powdered milk, etc., amount to more than four billion dollars annually, which is our greatest industry.

There are approximately twenty-two millions of dairy cows, including heifers two years old or over, on farms in the United States. Of this number, about one-third of these cows are loafers or boarders and are kept on our farms at a loss. About one-third break even, that is, they make no money; and one-third are good profit producers. If only one-third of the cows on our farms are making money to the owners, it is very essential to know how to select a good dairy cow.

"Buy the best and breed them better" is the slogan of a leading Jersey breeder. This slogan in my estimation is the best one that I have ever seen or heard. Those seven words mean more to the upbuilding of our dairy herds than any words that I have ever seen grouped together. Cheap cattle are seldom a bargain. Deep-bodied cows with good type and plenty of capacity are the most profitable to the owners. Cattle of this quality may cost more, but the profits from the sale of milk and surplus stock are much greater. It pays to "Buy the best and breed them better".

What is a dairy cow worth? This is a question that I am often asked, and there is but one answer, and that is that she is valuable in proportion to her production in the milk pail. One cow may not be worth her keep and another may be worth $500 or more. There are two ways of deciding a cow's value. One is to buy her and see if she pays her way and interest on the investment, and the other is to see her record as made in a cow-testing association or on official test by the breed association. A cow-testing association record is more likely to be found and may be considered reliable.

The cow is the hardest worked animal on the farm. She must have a strong constitution to produce largely, persistently and profitably. Constitution is indicated by large, open, well distended nostrils, by well-sprung fore ribs, and deep heart girth, signifying room for large heart and lungs. Also by largeness of windpipe and breadth of chest.

A cow never produces a pound of milk from anything other than feed and water. Other things being equal, the more feed a cow eats, the greater will be her yield in milk. Therefore, it is essential that a cow have capacity, which is indicated by a large mouth, strong jaws, and a large abdomen, "denoting a good feeder". She must have a body that is deep and long, with well-sprung ribs far apart, and a wedge-shaped conformation.

A good dairy cow must have what is known as "dairy temperament", which determines whether she is a worker or a loafer. This is indicated by a broad well-dished face and a large, bright, prominent, staring eye. A dairy cow should not put on too much fat along her back, and she must have wide, prominent hips. She must have good blood circulation for carrying food nutrients from the digestive system to the udder, where these nutrients are converted into milk and butterfat. A good circulation is indicated by prominent veins on the udder and large, crooked and elastic milk veins.

A good dairy cow must have ability which gives her the power of manufacturing milk and butterfat efficiently. This is indicated by an udder of good quality texture that is long and broad, between thin, well-arched thighs. The udder also should hang high behind, and should be carried and well forward.

I recommend bull circles or bull associations as the cheapest way and a good way to build up the quality of dairy cows in any community. The very best bulls available should be used for breeding.

I most heartily endorse the work of cow-testing associations, for in these cow-testing associations complete records of the milk produced and the feed consumed are kept, thus enabling the farmer to market his

SHERIFF STANLEY LOSES CAR BY THEFT WEDNESDAY

A neat transfer from a car stolen in Portageville to one owned by Sheriff A. E. Stanley, Sheriff of New Madrid County, was performed in that city Wednesday night about 7:30 o'clock.

The Portageville car was driven up near Sheriff Stanley's machine near the court house. The thieves evidently liked the New Madrid officer's make or model better, and drove away with it. A .38 Smith and Weston revolver had been left in Stanley's car.

Stanley's car is a 1930 2-door, black Ford coach, license number Missouri 211-746. Constable Brown Jewell was notified immediately and blocked the highway at Sikeston. The car failed to show up.

A preliminary report of the Boy Scout finance committee given Thursday afternoon reveals that approximately $200 in cash has been raised by five of thirteen teams engaged in raising funds for the establishment of a Scout Council in Southeast Missouri. Finance Chairman Lee Bowman seemed optimistic over the prospects of "going over the top" to reach the Sikeston quota of $600. There have been practically no refusals thus far, but the drive has merely been slowed up by other conditions which kept several teams out of the field. No one denies the value of Scouting as a movement, and any delay, in raising necessary finances, or otherwise, will merely tend to discourage Scout officials in carrying out a full-fledged program in this section of the State.

CHANGE GUARD RAIL TYPE IN HIGHWAY DIVISION 10

The State Highway Commission, through the Bureau of Maintenance, has started reconstructing all old type guard rail in the State.

The old type rail was originally built in 7-foot panels, using creosote posts, 4x4 top rails and 2x6 side rails. This type of rail is considered dangerous inasmuch as the top rail, in some cases, injures occupants of a car crashing into the guard rail.

The reconstruction plan is to use the same posts as is now being used, remove the top and side panels, placing eye bolts through the posts and threading them with 3-4 inch cable which will be tightened and anchored at each end of the guard fence. The top half of the post will be painted white and the bottom half black.

Many other States are using this type of guard rail, and it is found to be more protection to traffic in case of an accident, and is much easier to maintain.

Gravel contracts were recently let for the resurfacing of Route 25 in Cape Girardeau County from Jackson to Appleton, a distance of seventeen miles; Route 34 in Bollinger County, from Marble Hill to Cape Girardeau County line, a distance of 9 miles; and Route 51 in Bollinger County, from Lutesville south seven and one-half miles.

The contract on Route 25 was awarded the Lahar Brothers of Booneville, and the work on Routes 34 and 51 in Bollinger County was awarded to Emmett I. Forshee of Ironton.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL FROM NEW MADRID

The Board of Directors of Cons. Dist. No. 9, New Madrid, met with the contractors Monday evening in the County Court room of the courthouse, to let the contract for the building of the new high school and grade school and the addition to the negro school. Pearce, of Bonsack & Pearce, architect, employed for the work, drove down from St. Louis Monday to be present at the meeting. Seven general contractors, and fifteen or twenty plumbers, electricians and representatives of heating systems, made bids, none of which were satisfactory to the Board, and all were rejected. A new date will be set within the next two weeks, at which time bids will be resubmitted.

Robert Hatchett, 30 years old, negro, was drowned in St. John's bayou, and one a half miles east of New Madrid early Tuesday morning. Hatchett, who was employed by W. S. Edwards in doing some clearing work in the timber across the bayou, was crossing the stream in a small skiff with another negro. In some way, the boat overturned in about 8 feet of water, and Hatchett sank without returning to the surface, the other negro swimming to the shore. The body of the drowned man was recovered about ten minutes after the boat overturned, but he could not be revived. After a coroner's inquest, the body was buried by Hill Bros. undertakers of Libourn.

Miss Hermina Coon and Paul K. Dawson, both well known young people of New Madrid left Thursday for St. Louis, where they were married at St. Vincent's church by Rev. Fr. O'Kelley. After a honeymoon of several days in St. Louis, they returned home here Tuesday morning, where they will reside at the Commercial Hotel, which is operated by Mr. Dawson.

Cotton is consumed in the form of wash nets, twine, padding, sheeting, laundry bags, double-faced felt, and cover duck. Wash nets alone account for 14,900 bales of cotton.

JAIL BREAK AT BLOOMFIELD IS NIPPED IN THE BUD

Bloomfield, May 30.—Plans for the escape of Lone Spain, 24, who was arrested in Benton, Ill., April 30, and brought back here charged with holding up Lancaster's store in Bernie, were foiled Tuesday when Sheriff Beal made a search of the quarter in which he was kept and found ten hack saw blades hidden behind a picture on the wall, and a "billy" wrapped and hidden above the door. The "billy" had been made from an iron bar, which had been carefully wrapped with a blanket. It also had a strap on one end, so that it could be easily held.

The sheriff acted on a tip and searched the room, and found the saws and "billy". He also examined the bars and found that work on them had already been started but none of them had been cut entirely through.

The officials state that Spain had several visitors Sunday, and it is thought that the blades were smuggled to him sometime during the day. Sheriff Beal says that in the future, all visitors that call to see any prisoner, will be carefully watched.

Being propositioned by a Chicago whiskey ring, offered $1500 for nine days work, then spirited away to St. Louis, where he was held in a "cast" and then rushed south in a large Packard sedan from which he made his escape after killing one member of the gang, is the story of Lawrence J. Miller, 35 years old, contractor and building engineer of Naperville, Ill., who Tuesday morning received treatment for knife wounds by local physicians.

Miller was interviewed by a Standard representative and finally decided to talk.

The story begins about three months ago when a Mr. Jim Minero, boss of a Dago outfit in Chicago, asked him to accompany him to a building site in a sub-division near the city. Miller was gone from home two weeks, while he staked out the building, and laid plans for the structure. It was to have been a sheet-iron building with a "blind" basement.

Negotiations were made, plans drafted and work on the building actually started. Minero was OK, says Miller, but his sons started the argument. They first demanded that changes be made in the plans. They were accommodated. Then followed a two months' lapse while one change in plans followed another. Finally Miller's men completed a six-foot "blind" basement, (having no windows).

The Minero boys demanded, however, that some of their "gang" be allowed to work on the structure, which led in turn to conflict with Union men employed on the job. Miller refused to allow this concession.

In a short time the gang leaders were back and this time demanded that Miller's men continue building operations for two months while the whiskey ring completed installation of a distillery in the basement. "In other words," said Miller, "they wanted my men to camouflage their actions. We could not agree to that either, and the building operations were subsequently stopped."

Shortly after that the Minero gang approached Miller with an entirely different plan. He was to sell a burglar alarm system to banks. The first year's use would not involve one cent of outlay; after that if the job proved satisfactory, the bank was to pay $500. Miller was to contract for the work, but the gang was actually to make the installation. Miller's share of each deal was to be $250 and six such jobs were outlined for DuPage County, Ill., in the first visit. "It meant $1500 for nine days' work, but I turned down that racket, also," stated Miller. "I was approached with the bank robbing deal on May 20, two weeks ago tonight (June 3)."

By that time the gang decided that their friend Miller "knew too much". They asked him to get into their car and take a drive out to the subdivision, Miller leaving his own car in the city.

The drive terminated in St. Louis after countless stops at road houses, beer joints and "parties" of similar nature. In the Missouri city, he was turned over to a gang of Italians, who first proceeded to "sweat" him for possible information. The DuPage County contractor was placed in a "cast"—a wooden case which holds the body absolutely rigid in one position. "After, I don't know how long, the pain became so great that I lost consciousness, but I still refused to talk. Neither would I consent to the propositions they outlined. Finally they let me go, fed me plenty of greasy, peppery foods and about three nights ago, the whole outfit started out on a joyride.

There were eleven of them in two Lincolns and a Packard. All were Italians except two, an Irishman, who seemed to be the boss and one German. We made many stops at roadhouses, and a long one at a place in Southern Illinois. Finally, they crossed a bridge and finally went south again.

The Lincoln in which Miller was placed, contained only two of the gang, a "Dago", who soon dropped off into a drunken sleep and the driver. As they drove along, Miller found a folding jack handle and planned his method of escape. He finally decided to "let the driver have it", and take a chance on the drunken Italian in the seat with himself. One quick blow across the temple and the driver slumped over the wheel. The Dago awoke and succeeded in stabbing Miller twice, once in the left breast and once in the left arm below the elbow. Miller, however, rolled out of the car and struck out across fields.

The wounded man succeeded in getting a ride into Portageville, where the city police gave him a lift to Hayti and from there he rode to Sikeston with two young men.

Miller got in touch at once with Lawrence Heddendorf, sheriff of DuPage County, and C. W. Reed, State Attorney of Illinois. The officers promised to send a squad to investigate the matter and escort Miller to his home.

The wild tale has all the flavor of a Chicago gang war and rings true in spots. Miller claims to have been an Army Engineer during the World War. He is married and has one daughter, 9 years old, living in Naperville, Ill.

Naperville, Ill., June 3.—Lawrence Miller, Naperville contractor and Deputy Sheriff, missing since May 21, telephoned his wife today from Portageville, Mo., and said he had been kidnaped and beaten and had been held captive until today.

Miller asked his wife to send money and clothes, and State's Attorney Chauncey Reed of DuPage County announced he would send a man to meet Miller at Murphysboro, Ill.

Miller suspects that his captors might have been operators of a still in a barn raided near here recently. The contractor said his men had done some work on the barn and the raid was soon after. He thought the bootleggers might have suspected him of informing the authorities.

If you find dozens of your friends wearing small blue and white buttons with the wording "I'll be one of 999" this week, you might think that the wearer is acting in the capacity of publicity agent for a new variety of cure all medicine. But such is not quite the case. The buttons signify that the local Methodists desire to have a total of 999 members present next Sunday in all departments of their Sunday school.

The Gleaners Class, a 100 per cent woman's organization, has established as its goal an attendance of 150 next Sunday. Mrs. Joe Bowman will be teacher of the class in the absence of Chris Francis, regular instructor. All old members, would-be members and visitors are urged to be present to fill the desired quota.

LAYTON COW BARN BURNS ABOUT 10 A. M. WEDNESDAY

A relatively new, two-room cow barn and general utility shed on the G. J. Layton place on Ruth Street, was destroyed by fire about 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. Mrs. Layton had employed a woman to clean up the lot, intending to have it fenced off and planted to late truck crops.

The woman had started a small fire to burn the accumulated rubbish, and asked Mrs. Layton for the corn cobs scattered about on the premises, saying that the family had no fuel at home. Mrs. Layton readily granted the request and returned to her own duties in the house. About thirty minutes, she was startled to find the barn or shed in flames. Included in the destroyed property were eight bales of hay, a sack of feed bought Tuesday evening, and a quantity of lumber.

Mrs. Layton stated Wednesday afternoon that the fire that morning was the fifth in their neighborhood, and the first to start on the Layton property. A fence and small out-buildings on the M. L. Clayton property nearby were slightly damaged.

Mrs. R. A. Moll and children of Cairo arrived in Sikeston Tuesday evening for an extended visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Shepard.

A MESSAGE TO ADVERTISERS

By Glenn Griswold

—IN THE CHICAGO JOURNAL OF COMMERCE.

The man who goes after business usually gets more than his share of the whole.

Proof of this is to be discovered in a preliminary report of the results of a questionnaire sent to its members by the Illinois Lumber and Material Association. This shows that almost without exception those who spent a reasonable proportion of their gross sales for advertising and promotional work are satisfied with the state of their businesses, while, without any exception, the large number who spent little or nothing last year are thoroughly dissatisfied.

Thus far, replies have been received from 267 dealers representing 275 lumber yards. This is about 40 percent of the membership. Twenty-four of the 267 dealers spent 3 percent or more of their gross sales for advertising and sales promotion in 1929. But two of these reported less business and profit in 1929 than in 1928.

Thirty-nine dealers spent two percent of their gross sales for advertising and a majority of them reported business as good or better in 1929 than in 1928. Eighty dealers spent from one to 1 1/2 percent of gross receipts on advertising and most of them were dissatisfied with their expenditure last year.

One hundred and twenty-four spent from nothing to one-half of one percent of their gross sales on advertising and everyone of the 124 complained of poor business and unsatisfactory results.

Forty-five of these 124 spent nothing for advertising and their complaints were the loudest, their profits the least and their credit the worst.

CROP CONDITIONS GENERALLY FAVORABLE SAYS REPORT

Southeast Missouri and Northeast Arkansas: Weather conditions have been favorable throughout this section for farm work, and farmers have made excellent progress. The nights, however, have been too cool for cotton to make its best growth. Cotton in this section is as far advanced as it is in East Texas. Stands are better and the crop generally is clean and in good state of cultivation. No rain the past week, but the moisture is sufficient at present. Prospects for good corn and hay crops are excellent. Wheat is beginning to ripen in the Dexter district. The crop is only fair. No damage from disease or insect pests, or adverse weather. This section as a whole is 10 to 15 days farther advanced than it was this date last year.

Night prowlers gained entrance to the Whiz Bang Store on Front Street, this city, last Monday night by sawing out two door panels, and proceeded leisurely to pack 60 expensive dresses in stolen Gladstone cases and suit cases before making their departure. The loss was estimated by B. T. Topper, manager of the store, at from $450 to $500.

The robbers first drilled a line of holes along two sides of the back door panel, and then broke out and cut away the remaining thin spaces. This allowed them to unlock the outer door, but the same process had to be repeated on a second door before they gained entrance to the store proper. A long iron bolt was found near the second door and nearby lay a lock which had been pried loose. The visitors then concentrated their efforts upon racks of dresses, working well towards the front of the building. The rack containing about forty $16.95 dresses, is located within ten feet of the front door, and it was from this place that most of the garments were removed.

After selecting their assortment, the robbers carried the loot into a back room and removed the hangers before packing the dresses into a gladstone case and another suitcase. Topper checked the number of hangers and found 63 in the back room alone. Whether or not the prowlers took additional dresses with hangers, is not known. The loss is not insured.

HARRISON CHIDES G. O. P. CONFEREES FOR TARIFF ANTICS

Washington, June 3.—The export farm debenture amendment to the tariff bill was abandoned for the senate conferees even before its elimination was demanded by the house. Senator Harrison, Mississippi, Democrat, charged in the senate today in opening the Democratic attack on the completed Hawley-Smoot measure.

Harrison vigorously attacked the conference report on the bill, saying that in nearly every case the conferees adopted the highest rate they could under the rules. He charged that out of 143 rate increases voted by the senate in other than agricultural commodities, 118 were adopted by the conferees.

Senator Borah, Idaho, Republican, asked Harrison how long the conferees spent in discussing the debenture plan.

"The senate conferees insisted on receding to the house before the house conferees asked them to," Harrison replied.

"In other words", Borah said, "this great agricultural problem did not occupy the attention of the conferees for more than 30 minutes".

"No longer than 30 seconds", Harrison said. He pointed out that in the wool schedule twenty-eight rates were increased by the senate and the conferees adopted twenty-four of these and compromised on the others. He said, the conferees adopted every one of the twenty-four senate increases in the earthenware schedule.

Harrison declared the reason given by house conferees for insisting on a higher rate on red oil, was that it was made in Cincinnati, home of Speaker Longworth of the house.

John D. Rockefeller has been touched by his son-in-law for one million dollars which shows some fathers-in-law are worth having. If one of our sons-in-law would approach us on such a proposition we would turn him down mighty quick and there's a reason.

We don't know who the dog tax gatherer is, but we know heretofore more dogs ran loose in this city than paid the tax. The right sort of dog catcher would kill every one caught on the streets without license tag. No man with a valuable dog will fail to pay the tax and the sooner the other variety is eliminated, the better.

The Standard acknowledges receipt of a couple of turnips sent by Fred Hetlage of Kewanee, one of which measured 18½ inches in circumference. It was sufficient to make a meal for the family. Hetlage wanted us to know that his vicinity could grow big turnips any time of year.

This afternoon at 2:00 o'clock the Democratic rooster will flap his wings at Dexter and crow aloud to let the boys in the sticks know that the Jeffersonian brand of Democracy is once again being proclaimed. The braying ass variety can be turned over to Bishop Cannon and his ilk and let the rooster be our emblem now and henceforth.

The Standard editor is informed by President Chilton of the Southeast Missouri Press Association, that he is on the program for the press meeting to be held June 20 at Greenville and Piedmont. This is nice of Chilton and we expect, at this time, to be present. It may be best to omit this part of the program that all may enjoy the meeting.

Why is it necessary for merchants and tradesmen to go to the expense of paying a heavy per cent each month for collectors trying to get what is owing. Every year The Standard has engaged young people to collect on subscriptions and had little left. We are now sending out statements for the paper and trust to be out no more than postage.

Bishop Cannon hesitates to answer questions propounded by the Senate Lobby Committee at Washington. Harry Sinclair served time in prison for refusal to answer on advice of his attorney. We don't think Bishop Cannon is a bit better than Sinclair, morally or otherwise, and he should be given the same sort of treatment as was given Sinclair if he persists in refusing to answer. Senator Carraway of Arkansas, to speak at Dexter Friday afternoon, upholds the Bishop in his refusal. Carraway is not just what we thought he was.

Some talk has been had in Congress recently of the division of Texas into five States—four in addition to the original State of Texas, as was guaranteed that commonwealth at the time of her admission into the Union might be done without interference from our federal government should the time ever come when her people wished to make such division. The thought is a bit novel, though most schoolboy students of American history know that they have the right to do so if they wish. The thought of eight additional Southern U. S. Senators, an increased number of Congressmen, etc., is somewhat staggering to Eastern politicians, where the balance of power has remained so long, and naturally it would not find favor in such quarters. Indeed it would probably take a considerable campaign of education to make it a popular thought in Texas, which has occupied the proud position of the largest State, etc., for so long that the people might be loath to give it up. Texans often are fond of boasting in the following fashion. "If all the hogs in Texas were one hog he could dig the Panama Canal in three roots and grunt. If all the steers in Texas were one steer, he would stand with his front feet in the gulf of Mexico, his hind feet in Hudson Bay and with his horns punch holes in the moon and with his tail brush the mists off the Aurora Borealis"—and more after the same fashion. Texas would make 220 States the size of Rhode Island and the whole of the New England group would rattle about within her territory like a bean in a cocoanut, yet she can count only two votes in the U. S. Senate and has eight less votes in the electoral college than she would have under Garner's plan of division.—Caruthersville Democrat.

"I FOUND RIGHT MEDICINE WHEN I TOOK KONJOLA"

New Medicine Quickly Banished Ills of Stomach, Kidneys And Liver After Others Failed.

MISS VIOLA HOELTGE

"I found the right medicine when I took Konjola," said Miss Viola Hoeltge, 6337 Suburban avenue, St. Louis. "For over a year I was in constant misery from stomach, liver and kidney ailments. No food would be properly digested and I suffered agony from bloating, stomach pains and shortness of breath. Back pains were frequent and painful and I became subject to frequent dizzy spells. Bilious attacks and constipation added to my misery.

"I took many medicines without benefit until I tried Konjola. After a few weeks treatment with this great medicine my health troubles were solved. I no longer bloat after meals and my appetite is excellent. My liver and kidneys quickly yielded to Konjola and I am free from dizzy spells and bilious attacks. I never take cathartics and those splitting headaches are also a thing of the past. I shall always praise Konjola."

Konjola is not a 'cure-all'—there is no such thing, but when taken for from six to eight weeks, will produce amazing results. The countless thousands of endorsements of Konjola have proven that it makes good in even the most stubborn cases.

Konjola is sold in Skeston at the Derris drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

AS I SEE IT

By I'm About Town

If you happened to be a native of South Central Africa—a member of one of hundred Aborigine or native tribes—and you did not like your neighbor, you might have one of a dozen or so surefire methods of "fixing" him.

One lock of his hair wrapped in a banana leaf and buried assures you that your enemy will be food for buzzards as soon as the leaf decomposes. If you desire you might make a clay image and place the statue in a swift or slow-moving stream—depending wholly upon how fast or how slow you wished the offender punished. As sure as the sun rises and sets, however, the last race of the image in the stream would indicate that the friend had also breathed his last. The peculiar thing about it, is that it works, for the reason that you have taken particular pains to inform him that he has been placed under the spell.

This, of course, comes under the head of folk lore, and is practiced by those who have not had the advantages of more civilized methods of accomplishing the same end, i. e., taking him for a ride or placing a dram or so of poison in his coffee.

In the German there is a saying to this day which harks back to the days when the blonde giants, Anglo Saxons, sifted through the Black Forest overran the western part of Europe and finally settled in what is now England. The saying is this: "Hexen streich"—or spelling to that effect, meaning a witches stroke. It is used in the modern more or less lightly, a mild invective, yet it exists.

All of which leads us to the present. A Baltimore, Md., woman shoots a 70-year-old man because she was convinced that he had placed her under a hex spell, by driving a nail through her photograph.

She had known him for 20 years.

After all then it matters very little whether we live in South Central Australia, Africa or North America. It's what functions above the neck that counts.

Charlie Morris, paper salesman out of St. Louis, brought his recently acquired wife through out city on May 9. He relates that she was quite impressed with the young city here. Skeston does make that impression.

LEGION NOTES

At the meeting Wednesday night of Henry Meldrum Post of the Legion, several definite steps were taken which tend to show the enthusiasm with which the Legionnaires are working.

A committee headed by W. P. Wilkinson is to determine how many and the types of trees which the Post will set out in Legion Square this fall.

Repairs for the drinking fountain have been ordered and it is hoped that public sentiment will assist in protecting this fountain from the vandals who have recently destroyed two mouthpieces and the operating handle on the fount.

The Post voted to entertain the ladies at a dinner to be given some night next week. There will be special entertainment for the party and those who attend will be assured of good food and lots of laughs.

All known eligibles will be urged to take out membership in the Legion within the next few days as the Post is within five members of exceeding its previous high mark. Those members who sign up before the dinner party next week will be expected to be present when mess call is sounded.

It is practically assured that another July fourth picnic will be held for the Legionnaires and their families, as was done last year, and the scouts are now looking for a promising location.

WANTS $2,000,000,000 BOND ISSUE TO AID UNEMPLOYED

Washington, June 4.—President Hoover was urged today by the National Unemployment League to sponsor a Federal bond issue of from $2,000,000,000 to $3,000,000,000 to be spent in road construction for the relief of unemployment.

Asserting business conditions have not improved during the spring as expected, Darwin J. Meserole, president of the league, recommended to the President expansion of the steps already taken to relieve the business depression.

BODY OF PROMINENT OAK RIDGE DOCTOR FOUND IN FIELD NEAR HOME MONDAY P. M.

Oak Ridge, June 4.—Final rites for Dr. W. K. Statler, 52 years old, prominent Oak Ridge physician, who was found dead in a field on his farm east of here Monday afternoon, were held this afternoon at the Baptist church here of which he was a member. Rev. George Graham of Herrin, Ill., formerly pastor of the local church, conducted the services. Interment was in the Oak Ridge cemetery, where the Mystic Tie Lodge of the Masonic order of this place, aided by the Cape Girardeau Commandery lodge of Knights Templar held services directed by Judge James A. Kinder of Cape Girardeau.

The physician, one of the most active and widely-known in his profession in the district, was found late in the afternoon following his absence from the residence for three hours. Knowledge of his ill health caused members of the family to search for him when he did not return home within an expected time.

United in marriage May 29, 1907, to Miss Iola Hinkle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Hinkle of Oak Ridge, the former now deceased, two sons were born to this union. They were Osler Statler and W. Hinkle Statler, both of Oak Ridge and who are former students of the University of Missouri and the Teachers College at Cape Girardeau, the latter graduating from the Teachers College last week.

BYRD PARTY MEMBER TELLS HOW MONOTONY AFFECTED THE MEN

Chicago, June 4.—Raymond Marcola, a Chicago member of Byrd's South Pole expedition, told yesterday how monotonous sometimes life became during their stay in the Antarctic region.

"The cold Antarctic made some of the fellows yield to queer whims," he said. "It made one man play 'California Here I Come' over and over on a talking machine. It nearly drove us mad. Finally we smashed the record. Then we had the trouble of teaching him a new diversion."

WANTS DAMAGES TO PROVE SHE IS NOT A "DRY SNOOPER"

Muncie, Ind., June 4.—Mrs. Clara E. Hutson, of Muncie wants $2000 damages as proof she is not a "dry snooper".

Alleging that Dewey Kennedy, a workman, circulated reports that she caused police to raid the home of a neighbor, where home brew was found, Mrs. Hutson has filed a suit against Kennedy charging slander. The complaint sets out that she is being "laughed at, scorned, talked about, ridiculed and abused as a dry snooper".

Thin, Pale, Weak

"I HAD been through a bad spell of sickness which left me very weak," says Mrs. Virginia Spruce, of Stapleton, Va. "I was pale and felt lifeless, and my strength did not return. I spent most of my time on the bed. I was very nervous, and the least thing upset me. I did not have strength enough to lift a broom. At times I would have bad headaches, which would hurt me until I could hardly see. "Someone asked me why I did not try Cardui. I had read of it, so I thought I would see what it would do for me. It was really remarkable how I came out. My strength returned, and my health was better than it had been in years. I gained in weight about ten pounds. My color was good, and I ceased to suffer from headaches. I have told my friends about Cardui because I was benefited after taking it."

HOOVER CAUTIOUS IN HIS ATTITUDE ON TARIFF BILL

Washington, June 4.—President Hoover is going to move cautiously when—and if—the tariff bill is passed by congress and sent him for signature, George Akerson, his secretary, said today.

He said Mr. Hoover plans to consider the contents of the measure "very carefully" and will take no action until he has conferred with tariff experts and studied the reports from the budget bureau, tariff commission and from the various government departments interested in the legislation.

He has ten days to sign the bill and make it a law or veto it after it reaches his desk.

A strange contrast of views on the probable fate of the bill in congress was aired today by opposing leaders as the Democratic-Insurgent coalition sought to delay a final vote in the senate until the end of the week.

Administration leaders, who previously asserted they had sufficient votes to insure passage of the bill in both house and senate, announced they now fear the outcome.

"It looks close," admitted Senator Watson, Indiana, Republican, the floor leader. "It may end in a tie vote."

"The vote will be close." Senator Norris, Republican, insurgent leader, agreed, "but they've got enough votes to put it over."

"The result will be decided by one or two votes," said Senator Simmons, North Carolina, minority leader on the finance committee.

An independent poll has indicated that the bill will pass in the senate by a margin of two votes, or with Vice President Curtis breaking a tie, depending on the attitude of Senator Grundy, Pennsylvania, Republican, credited with having "fathered" many items in the bill. He is now displeased by the measure as a whole.

Forty-three Republicans and five Democrats are known to favor the bill. This would be half of the senate, with a tie resulting if all other senators vote against it. The Democrats favoring it are Senators Fletcher and Trammell of Florida, Broussard and Ransdell of Louisiana and Kendrick of Wyoming.

WOMEN ENCHANTED BY ROMANTIC KING

Dennis King, who has been hailed as the talking-singing screen's newest apostle of romanticism, is, above all, a gentleman.

While he was working on the production of "The Vagabond King" at Paramount's Hollywood studio, King was asked to tell his ideal of woman-kind.

"First of all," said the famous Broadway musical comedy singer, "she must be a blonde—that is she must have a blonde personality. Many brunettes have it."

Nothing could have been more typically chivalrous of Dennis King than those words. Blondes and brunettes alike will find flattery in them.

And it is well that King's opinion is so all-inclusive, for he is going to gain thousands of admirers among the blondes and brunettes before his great picture "The Vagabond King" is many weeks old. Women just seem to "go for" this dashing, romantic young lyric actor in a great big way.

In "The Vagabond King" Dennis King has a blonde leading lady. She is Jeanette MacDonald, the dazzling charmer of Broadway musical comedy fame, who sang her way into the hearts of film enthusiasts everywhere with her splendid portrayal of the role of Queen Louise in Maurice Chevalier's "The Love Parade".

"The Vagabond King" is based on the operetta of the same name which ran for more than a season on Broadway. The original Rudolph Friml songs will be heard again when the picture comes to the Malone Theatre Thursday and Friday.

SUGAR LOWEST IN TEN YEARS

New York, June 4.—Leading sugar refiners cut their prices one-fifth of a cent today for the second time in a fortnight, reducing the wholesale price to 4½ cents a pound, the lowest in about 10 years. A receiver was appointed today for the Punta Alegre Sugar Co. This is the third large Cuban sugar company to become involved in financial difficulties recently. The sugar market has been depressed for several months by excessive production last year.

ADAM ATE NO APPLE— IT WAS A PINE CONE, SCIENTIST DECLARES

Copenhagen, Denmark, June 4.—It was a pine cone and not an apple that caused Adam's downfall. If you believe Dr. Ditlef Nielson.

Eve, according to the Danish scientist, never handed Adam an apple. Instead, she gave him an Asiatic fruit called "peri", now known as a pine cone.

Dr. Nielson said today he had found a picture dating from Babylonian times showing Adam and Eve under a pine tree with a pine cone. "Peri", he explained, "is known to increase certain emotions and hence must be blamed for original sin".

CONVICTS TO BE USED TO BUILD NEW STATE PEN

Jefferson City, June 4.—The work of building the intermediate penitentiary at Algoa will be done largely by convicts from the Missouri penitentiary. As most of the buildings will be built of concrete, there will be practically no stone work to be done.

The prison has only one inmate who is an expert stone cutter, and it is pointed out that concrete would be cheaper than stone regardless of the great amount of stone available on the site of the new institution.

The stone will be crushed in a prison rock crusher which is already set in place for operation, and the crushed stone used in the concrete mixture.

It is planned to pattern the institution after the intermediate reformatory in New Jersey which is built on the Cottage plan. Instead of having cell houses, the new penitentiary will have barrack-like cottages which will be divided into sleeping rooms. One of the cottages will be divided into cells for disciplinary purposes. The administration building, the cottages, the factories, dining room, hospital and other buildings will all have a goodly amount of space between them.

Benton, Mo., June 3rd, 1930
RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT
By the Scott County Court in memory of the late departed Judge Anton Legrand.

Whereas: It has pleased The Great Judge of All to call from his work here, our friend and co-worker, Judge Anton LeGrand, who so faithfully demeaned himself in the performance and execution of his official service since his entrance upon the duties of Associate Judge in the 2nd District of Scott County;

And Whereas: The vacant chair, now draped in mourning, where he so often sat, a reminder of his absence, in its silence, and in midst of subdued voices and softly treading footsteps, sheds a spirit of gloom about the court-room:

And Whereas: The ever present consciousness that his calm face in this community and county, where, during a long life, he has so faithfully walked and wrought will be seen no more, casts the shadows of sorrow about us,

Be It Resolved: That the Scott County Court in its expressions of sympathy to his widow and children and his hosts of friends in their bereavement and grief, enter upon its records a copy of these resolutions, in order that the memory of Anton LeGrand, a citizen, patriot, Judicial Officer and father of a large and affectionate family of surviving children, may be perpetuated as one who lived up to the vows of his religion and his code of manhood, and who proved his sincerity from day to day, in the uprightness of his dealings with his fellow man.

Resolved further: That a copy of these resolutions be sent to his family and a copy be given to each of the County papers.

JOHN W. HEEB,
Presiding Judge
GEO. BUCHANAN,
Associate Judge, County Court of Scott County, Missouri.

STAR IS "COOK" IN MUSICAL PLAY

Nancy Carroll, in her various activities before the camera and microphone, has been a show-girl, a lady's maid, a member of a ladies' orchestra and a sales clerk—but now she is a "kitchen mechanic".

In "Honey", which comes to the Malone Theatre Sunday and Monday Miss Carroll plays the role of Olivia Dangerfield, a Southern girl who is forced by circumstances to rent her family's plantation mansion to a wealthy woman from the East. Due to unforeseen events Nancy is forced to assume an Irish brogue and fulfill the duties of cook in the kitchen of the mansion. She finally saves the homestead from financial disaster after a series of amusing and romantic episodes.

"Honey" is based on "Come Out of the Kitchen", famous Broadway stage success of several years ago. The play was written by A. E. Thomas from the original novel by Alice Duer Miller. The music was written by Harling and Coslow.

The screen adaptation was written by Herman J. Mankiewicz, veteran scenarist of the Paramount staff.

In the supporting cast of "Honey" are Harry Green as Helton, the comedy detective; Skeets Gallagher as

Nancy's brother and the temporary butler; Lillian Roth, ZaSu Pitts, Mitzie Green and Charles Sellon. All have established themselves on the talking screen as veteran comedy character actors.

Stanley Smith, the handsome young actor from Hollywood high school, who was Miss Carroll's leading man in "Sweetie", plays the romantic role in "Honey". Smith was placed under a long-term contract by Paramount after executives of that company analyzed the "Sweetie" reviews of 30 movie critics in thirty of the country's leading cities.

While we are in the right spirit and our heart is right, we wish to acknowledge before God and man our gratefulness for the almost complete recovery of our immediate family.
Our daughter, Edna, with her new babe and other three children, have arrived safely in their home in Virginia, near Washington. Charlie is so far recovered as to be permitted to ride out for a short while each day. Mary, another daughter, who withstood a major operation Sunday morning is doing fine. Mrs. Blanton is still shaky and weak, but as soon as the home is clear of children and grandchildren, she'll go to the Ozarks for a few weeks to rest and recuperate. We are all right and as mean as ever.

John Barleycorn may have lost his place in the sun, but he has his moonshine still.—Caruthersville

Once upon a time a patient was brought to a hospital on a cot from another county, who had been ill for eight weeks. She was close on to eighteen years of age with neither father nor mother to minister to her wants in her sickness—a brother did the best he could. Pus had gathered in the lung or pleural cavity and it was necessary to cut out a section of rib and insert a tube for drainage purposes. Now, this patient had neither underclothes nor a gown to put on after the operation and another patient furnished a gown. This girl's body was in such condition that soap and disinfectants had to be used before she could be placed on the operating table. Word was given to a few that old and worn gowns were needed for this girl and they came promptly. Twenty-four hours after the operation she was clean and comfortable and in due course of time her body will be mended and she can return to the farm. This is another case where God will have to pay the bill for no money was had and no questions asked, but surgeons and nurses will care for and feed her for the good of humanity. What have you done to help this sort of charity work?

ceive them.

God Bless the Candidate

The lark is up to meet the sun,
The dove coos to its mate,
And everywhere we meet and greet
The smiling candidate.

Not victory's wreath, but gloom's defeat.

May stare him in the eye;
But put his back and praise him for
The spirit of the try.

He might not win, but on the skids
Take a toboggan slide;
Tho' fleeting years may dim the past,
That memory will abide.

But if he wins, it might be said:
Because this race he ran,
His life a benediction proved,
That blessed his fellow man.

So, voter, go and vote for him,
And you'll be glad you went;
Not so, if like Achilles, you
Sit sulking in your tent.

Be glad you're in America
Where each may have his say;
And by your balloting, exclaim:
God bless Election Day.

Then, when at night, you kneel down
In prayer to concentrate,
Before you rise, don't fail to pray:
God bless the candidate.

The Woman's Club of Skeston have abandoned the home carnival that was intended for an early date.
We believe this was a good idea as merchants would have been solicited for donations of late and they have been milked dry. Give the merchant a rest from panhandlers and solicitors as all are having a hard time to get by after selling their wares without giving them away.

The W. C. T. U. of St. Louis has resolved against women wets. It might not be out of order to state that women have a perfect right to be wet as some have of being dry.
We prefer 'em dry.

Newspapers report England astir on eve of the Epsom Downs race in that country, and we might add that we in the United States are astir for a long time over the Ups and Downs race.

We believe the theater-going public is pretty well fed-up on the Oriental dance with its obscenity and indecency, and that Hollywood deserves to be rebuked for continuing to force it upon a long-suffering and disgusted public. It may still have an appeal to the habitude of the "Red Light" district, but cultured people revolt at its nasty suggestion of beastly passion. It is a relic of barbarism inherited from the Spanish-American War, and the remuneration our civilization received for liberating the Philippines from despotic rule. People who behave so badly perhaps did not deserve to be snatched from beneath the iron heel of a tyrant. Anyway, we got stung.

The question nepotism has been raised in the schools of Poplar Bluff.
The Attorney General of the State has construed the law to bar members or kinship of a School Board member, and the Prosecuting Attorney of Butler County has agreed with him. Skeston is due for a shake-up of teachers if this decision holds and the Board should look into the matter now.

Republican primary expenditures

The Missouri State Board of Agriculture calls attention to the nothing less than wonderful development of the ice cream industry in the United States, not less than six billion pounds of milk being utilized annually in the commercial manufacture of this food, formerly looked upon as a sometimes luxury. Secretary Jewell Mayes remarks that ice cream has developed from a once-a-year-picnic treat to a daily diet, much to the benefit of consumers and greatly to the advantage of the dairy farming industry.

For the information of many in-quirers in different sections of Missouri, Secretary Jewell Mayes of the State Board of Agriculture today made public his reply to the courteous request of Secretary Frank A.
Wightman of the Monet, Mo., Commercial Club, asking for the services of a professional wolf trapper. The Missouri State Board of Agriculture has no available appropriation or service for the trapping and eradication of wolves now menacing sheep and poultry, having had no appropriation therefor since July 1, 1925. The wolf problem is evidently becoming more and more serious in several sections of Missouri.

MISSOURI POST TIMBER

State Forester Frederick Dunlap of the Missouri State Board of Agriculture has made a public statement, counseling farmers as to the most successful plantings for growing fence posts, of which the following is a condensed summary:

Osage Orange is the most durable wood for posts, while Black Locust, Red Cedar and Mulberry stand just below it.

Black Locust is sometimes seriously injured by borers, and at present we know no way to prevent these losses.

Native Red Cedar affords a valuable supply of posts in some parts of Missouri, but it is not planted because it harbors the cedar rust of apples.

The Osage Orange and Mulberry thus afford the best species we have for growing fence posts on Missouri farms.

Fourteen States contributed to the big summer opening at the Chillicothe Business College last Monday, the more distant ones being North Carolina, Colorado, Mississippi, Kentucky and Louisiana.

CARUTHERSVILLE BOX FACTORY TOTAL LOSS

Caruthersville, June 2.—Fire this morning destroyed the box shop department of the Dillman egg case factory here and this afternoon was threatening to spread to a nearby sawmill and a yard of drying material. The fire is believed to have started near a resaw and is said to have come up through the floor near this machine. The flames quickly spread to all parts of the building before the mill and town fire departments could swing into action.

All workers fled from the blazing mill. The mill is said to be the largest egg case factory in the world.
Although only one building was destroyed, it was said the mill probably would close.

About 200 employees, both men and women, will be thrown out of work.
Early this afternoon it was estimated the damage amounted to $150,000, and the loss will be considerably larger unless the spread of the flames is checked.

Most records in the office, which was destroyed, were saved. Frank Dillman, vice president of the Associated Industries of Missouri, is the owner of the company.

YOUNG WOMAN TELLS OF AUTO TRIP WITH PASTOR

St. Louis, June 3.—The Rev. Alonzo L. Shoemaker, former pastor of the Edwards Street Pentecostal Mission at Alton, Ill., is expected to testify in his own defense in City Court there this afternoon in his trial on a charge of abducting at 19-year-old girl, a former member of his choir.

The complaining witness against him, Miss Bernice Ford, now 21 years old, gave her testimony yesterday in a court room crowded with members of the mission, of which the Rev.
Mr. Shoemaker formerly was the head. Many of those present were women, some of whom took their babies with them and the crying of the infants at one point led Judge Yager to ask them to leave the children at home.

Miss Ford testified that in April, 1928, the pastor persuaded her to accompany on an automobile trip to Missouri and suggested that she tell her mother she was going to St.
Louis to look for work. They drove to Morley, Mo., in his automobile and stayed there over night, continuing the next day to Charleston, Mo., and returned home after spending the night there, she testified.

Registers of hotels at Morley and Charleston were introduced showing that a man with a name similar to that of the Rev. Mr. Shoemaker had stayed at the hotels on the dates mentioned by Miss Ford, but the ho-telkeepers were unable to identify him as the man who had registered there.

The defense introduced a letter and an affidavit made by Miss Ford, to the effect that she had not accompanied the clergyman on the trip. She testified that she had agreed to make the affidavit and write the letter at the pastor's request on his promise to marry her.

The defendant and two young women who had played saxophones in his church orchestra disappeared from Alton last fall and were arrested in Florida several months ago.

He was returned to Alton and indictments charging him with abduction in these cases also were returned. The young women, Miss Annette Harris and Miss Edith Hankins, each 21 years old, were in the courtroom and exchanged smiles with the cler-gyman. The cases in which they will be prosecuting witnesses have not yet been brought to trial.

Abduction, the enticing of a woman or girl from her home, is an offense punishable in Illinois by a penitentiary sentence of from one to ten years.

The Rev. Mr. Shoemaker, ousted from the Edwards Street Mission, now lives at Nutwood, 20 miles north of Alton. His wife and two children live in Alton.

WEATHER MAN EXPLAINS WHAT "CYCLONE" MEANS

A "cyclone" in the science of meteorology is not a violent and destructive twisting windstorm or "twister" so greatly dreaded in some parts of the United States. That sort of storm is properly called a tornado. A cyclone, weather forecasters explain, is an extensive system of winds over an area of low atmospheric pressure as measured by the barometer. It is represented on the synoptic charts published by the Weather Bureau of the Department of Agriculture by arrows showing wind directions and a series of waving lines resembling the contour lines on a map. These lines pass thru points having equal barometric pressure at the time indicated the chart. Other similar sets of lines represent areas of high pressure or regions of "anticyclones". A cyclone may cover several States, and as a rule moves in an easterly direction across the country.

"The reason why cyclones and an-ticyclones or the 'lows' and 'highs' of the weather chart have such an important bearing on weather forecasting", says Alfred Judson Henry, of the Weather Bureau, "is because of the pronounced contrast in the weather associated with each. If it is known that a cyclone is advancing upon a region, it is assured within slight variations, depending on the season, that the winds will be stronger than the average, the sky will be cloudy and there will be rain or snow according to the time of year, and the temperature will be higher than usual. After the cyclone has passed and the anticyclone has come on, precipitation of rain or snow cases, the sky, as a rule, clears, the winds shift to a northeasterly or westerly quarter, and the temperature falls. The northerly component of the wind continues for several days and then shifts to an easterly or southerly quarter, thus indicating the approach of another cyclone."

Carpenter was stacking brush in a twenty years and today they are stronger with the owners than ever. Ask the lady who owns one if you doubt it. By the way, we take old stoves in trade on Florences and give time on balance.

Store News—Not Cut Throat Bunk

The purpose of this column from week to week in Southeast Missouri papers is to present housekeepers with sidelights of interest on quality, price, variety and service pertaining to home furnishings. In no sense do we claim to undersell every other store in the country. Such propaganda is stale and ridiculous on its face, yet some stores continue to use it. We DO have special values every weeks that are very attractive but our idea of winning trade and holding it is to show better selections of dependable merchandise and render superior service—reasonable prices, of course, receiving first consideration always. On that basis we solicit business from all over this section—and the records show we are getting a good share of it.

Invite Company to the Kitchen

The place where average housewives spend a very considerable part of their working days may be made a cheery, conveniently furnished room to which they may feel proud to invite neighborhood callers. Colorful kitchen cabinets, stoves, chairs, linoleum, etc., adapted to a sense of harmony are now obtainable.
The Sellers Company, makers of the most efficient kitchen cabinets on the market are distributing that sort of equipment. We are happy to be their representatives in this territory and take genuine delight in selling their products because we know Sellers quality makes friends for our store every time.

RESTORATION OF OLD WILLIAMSBURG

By J. E. Jones

Williamsburg, Va., May 27.—You don't need sets of resolutions opposing the plans of all recent Presidents of the United States for a smaller navy to feel patriotic here. You don't need to scold your neighbor and frown upon him when he fails to hop to his feet at the first notes of the band when it plays "The Star Spangled Banner" to feel the pride of country here. You don't need to believe in war as a means of preserving peace in this wonderful section of old Virginia, where America began to solve its problems when the first English settlement came to Jamestown, six miles away, over 300 years ago.

If I could rub a lucky old lantern that would make a wish come true I could ask for nothing better than to have some of my intolerant super-patriotic friends here with me in Williamsburg this beautiful early summer day, to see what I have seen and feel the pride and joy of our country in witnessing the process of the "Restoration" of this small city. More than forty public buildings and private Colonial residences which stood before the Revolution will become a part of the restored Williamsburg—for Williamsburg is being rebuilt and reconstructed in order to make it as nearly as possible "just like it was in Colonial times".

Let me tell you (I know) that strange thrills chase up and down your spine, in this quiet, peaceful section of Virginia where liberty was born. There is no artificial stimulus needed here. You simply look up and down old Duke of Gloucester street, and murmur silently: "Thank God, that I, and my people who preceded me, belonged to all that this represents". "And to think", you add, "that all this sacred historical ground, and its buildings, are to be turned back so that it will be like it was more than two and a half centuries ago".

First there was Jamestown, "with golden memories",—which you can see today, was a poor location for the first settlers from England to attempt to occupy with their homes. In time town moved "bag and baggage" to "The Middle Plantation", away from unhealthy swamps and lowlands, to the summit of the ridge where waters divide, and flow in opposite directions off to the James and York rivers. Thus Williamsburg became the successor, and replaced Jamestown.

It became the Colonial Capital, ruled over by English governors, including Nicholson, Spotswood, Dinwiddie and Lord Dunsmore, who were sustained by the House of Burgesses and the Council. History and fiction reveal in the grandeur of the grand men and the elegance of the elegant ladies of ancient Williamsburg. The ghosts of those gorgeous days, as Mary Johnston describes them in her delightful novels, dance gaily before your vision as you halt your motor and try to recall what you know about Williamsburg—the old and the magnificent.

There are building operations in progress, all about you. It does not take you long to understand what is going on. Simply stated: Rev. Dr. W. A. R. Goodwin is the Rector of Bruton Parish church, the plans of which were furnished by Governor Alexander Spotswood 220 years ago. Dr. Goodwin was big enough and broad enough to undertake to turn Williamsburg aside from the jazzy, hectic speedy, maddening pace of the present day and age, and by reverse evolution restore the scenes, at least, that existed when William and Mary College was built, and granted a Royal charter, and furnished a Royal Coat of Arms. Dr. Goodwin told John D. Rockefeller, Jr., his "dream". Mr. Rockefeller is not troubled with the sort of emotions that prompt the new-rich to do eccentric things, because his father arranged that she should be born rich. Just to know, but apparently John D. how the rest happened I do not claim Rockefeller, Jr., distributed his surplus millions very wisely, and well. Anyhow, here I am in Williamsburg—"thrilled pink", as a couple of young ladies I like, might say. And as my ancestors were participants in the early American adventures I'm delighted that "Goodwin & Rockefeller" got together in the marvelous undertaking for the "Restoration" of Colonial Williamsburg. The new "Raleigh Tavern" is almost completed. Bruton Parish church always has been kept up, and it typifies and glorifies the past and the present as an American church that is entitled to the same affection and reverence that the people of the Old World have for their cathedrals.

King James I left his mark on Williamsburg, as in the year 1617 he authorized the bishops and clergy of England to make collections "for the

erecting of some churches and schools for the education of the children of those barbarians in Virginia". A hundred years later one of the principal buildings of William and Mary college became an Indian school. James sent silkworms to Virginia and offered a bounty for silk cloth manufactured here. The planters found the cultivation of tobacco more profitable, but many of the mulberry trees, hoary with age, are still standing—silent sentinels of an age when America did not count for much in the affairs of the world. The countryside from Williamsburg to Yorktown is gay, these early summer days, with the beautiful yellow flowers of Scotch broom. Some good old Englishman or Scotchman may have introduced the shrub into Colonial America long ago. One theory is that the seed may have been brought over from England in feed and hay for the cattle. Boxwood hedges are much in evidence in Williamsburg, and additional box-trees are being brought in to add to the charm that attaches itself to these beautiful evergreens, brought from England, and preserved in certain Colonial locations like Williamsburg, and at Mount Vernon and Gunston Hall, where George Washington and George Mason lived and were neighbors. Mary and William college campus carries with great dignity many evidences of age and colonial grandeur, and its huge live oaks, sycamores, locust, maple and elm trees fit perfectly into the admirable setting.

The main street of Williamsburg is Duke of Gloucester street, having been named in 1705 in honor of Queen Anne's eldest son. In this same year the General Assembly met for the first time in the new Capitol building.

William and Mary college has been the connecting link that has held old Williamsburg together, and preserved its legends, traditions, history and most of all—sentiment. Beginning in 1700 the first college building was used as headquarters of the Colonial government, and the General Assembly met in the building until the Capitol building was finished in 1705.

The main building of the college of William and Mary, started in 1695, has been burned three times, but its thick walls have never fallen. The President's house was erected in 1732 and since that time it has housed every president of the college. Lord Cornwallis had his headquarters here in 1781 on his way to Yorktown. Brefferton hall was originally built in 1732 and used as an Indian school, for those "barbarians" whom King James I wanted educated. These three buildings, noble with age, and rich in their record of service, are powerful reminders of the character and sturdiness that belongs to Williamsburg. The college has prospered in recent years under the very able guidance of Dr. J. A. C. Chandler, and in the 10 or 11 years since he became president, the enrollment has increased from 150 students to more than 3500.

William and Mary college stands at one end of Duke of Gloucester street. Three-quarters of a mile away, at the end of the same street, was the old Colonial Capitol, the rebuilding of which has begun. It will be as near a replica as possible of Virginia's Colonial Capitol under the British.

In Colonial days there was only one great college in the South—with Harvard in the North. All the men whose names are illustrious in Southern history of that period had been sent to William and Mary college, and they also attended Bruton Parish church. Washington, Jefferson, John Marshall, George Wythe, James Monroe, Henry Clay, John Tyler, Benjamin Harrison, Edmund Randolph and hundreds of others were educated here.

How much Mr. Rockefeller will give to Williamsburg no one knows, except that it will amount to several million dollars. Most of the buildings and sites of old Williamsburg, including nearly all of the buildings which line both sides of the three-quarter-mile thoroughfare of Duke of Gloucester street, have been purchased for the "Restoration". Both sides of the street will be restored. That is only part of the story, as hundreds of thousands of dollars will be spent in the improvements and the restoration in the rest of this city of 2500 inhabitants.

Even the poles erected to carry telephone and electric light wires will be removed and the wires put underground. A new highway will be built to relieve the Duke of Gloucester street as the main artery of travel, so that it will become a nice old Colonial street, once more.

August 6, 1736. But, like other necessities, the newspaper passed into a long slumber following the decision of Thomas Jefferson, when he became governor of Virginia in 1779, to move the State capitol to Richmond. This change was carried into effect the following year. But the Virginia Gazette has been restored, and when I called to pay my respects, its editor, J. A. Osborne, generously presented me with a handsomely printed and ably edited copy of "Volume I, Number 1, new Series", of the Gazette, dated January 10, 1930. Late copies of the Gazette, and changed conditions of Williamsburg indicate that its presses will never again fail to supply the paper to the people of this part of old America.

Jamestown, Williamsburg and Yorktown contributed the highest spots in Colonial history, outside of New England, where other chapters of the great adventures of our forefathers were engraved in the heart of America. Fortunately Williamsburg just "pegged along" for more than a hundred years as a small educational town, which makes it possible to restore it in the way in which it existed in Colonial days. Jamestown was first. Yorktown witnessed the fulfillment of the vision of a new people who triumphed over their oppressor. Williamsburg was it in Colonial days. Three Colonial governors were buried here. For more than a hundred years before the United States was created, Williamsburg was the seat of Colonial government.

So, as we have seen with our own eyes the great plan under way for the restoration of Williamsburg, we have tried to imagine something of the effect it will have on future generations. Millions of people will turn this way to visit the birthplace of the Republic. It ought to steady them a little at least, as they recognize the importance of events at Williamsburg, and Jamestown, and then go on to the Surrender Ground at Yorktown—all within a radius of about 20 miles. After viewing the picture the conclusion is inevitable that what the country needs most is more preachers like Dr. Goodwin and more millionaires like Mr. Rockefeller.

Joilet, Ill., June 2.—John King, an aged convict, inventor of an airplane propeller of revolutionary design, has refused all monetary offers, insisting that when society releases him from prison, it will receive the benefits of his discovery.

Though King has been incarcerated for 15 years and has never seen a modern airplane, the United States Navy, Henry Ford and the Guggenheim Foundation have communicated with him about the propeller.

The original idea for his invention came in a dream while he was in solitary confinement, King said. He worked for five years on plans. After Maj. Harry C. Hill became warden of the State penitentiary, King was permitted the use of the prison workshop to complete a model.

His discovery is a multiple propeller designed to utilize every ounce of horsepower, giving 90 per cent efficiency instead of 40 per cent as in the present types. There are four blades, each connected separately to a hollow central shaft. As the outer shaft revolves, the blades move back and forth along the length of the shaft.

At maximum speed each blade will make 1000 trips in a minute, feathering automatically in the direction of flight and changing to the proper drawing pitch at the point of maximum pull.

Maj. Hill said King has refused several offers for his invention, insisting the price is his freedom. He has been in prison 15 years and has 13 years more to serve on the present term, his fourth. Psychologists say he has a "criminal type of mind".

Sir Hubert Wilkins Discovers 540,000 Square Miles

(1) Captain Sir Hubert Wilkins. (2) Members of the second Wilkins aerial expedition to the Antarctic, left to right: Orval Porter, engineer; Al Cheesman and Parker Cramer, pilots, and Captain Sir Hubert Wilkins. (3) One of the airplanes in which Captain Wilkins flew more than 6,000 miles in the Antarctic. He was the first to fly in that region. (4) One of the striking air views of the Antarctic. Captain Wilkins has made a complete photographic record of his pioneering flights in the Far South.

"I'm not interested in doing what other people have done or going where others have gone. I want to do what others haven't done and go where no one else has gone before."

Here is the creed of the true explorer. The speaker is Captain Sir Hubert Wilkins—one who, from his record of achievement as a scientist and explorer, is especially qualified to speak for his clan.

Adventure and romance are not dead!

Captain Wilkins has lived up to the creed of the true explorer. In 17 years of exploration work in the Polar regions he has seen more land never before observed by human eyes than any other man. The figure is astounding—fully 540,000 square miles of land in the Arctic and Antarctic that he was the first to see. Much of this vast acreage he has recorded for posterity in maps and pictures.

Some of this territory he saw first on foot. Then, in more recent years he saw the same land—and a great deal more—from the air. In 1928, with the late Carl Ben Eielson as his pilot, he flew from Point Barrow, Alaska, to Spitzbergen. Fully 1,200 miles of the 2,300 miles covered on this trip comprised straight line flying over territory never before seen. In two aerial expeditions to the Antarctic his straight line flying over land not previously observed totaled 1,500 miles.

It is figured that in flying of this sort, the eyes can take in 100 miles on either side of the course, making 200 miles in all. Multiply 200 by 2,700, which is the total of his straight line flying over previously unobserved territory in both the Arctic and Antarctic, and we get the 540,000 figure.

Captain Wilkins has tramped on foot over a total of 5,000 miles of Arctic wastes. The total mileage of his flights in the Arctic is 15,000, 10 per cent of which was over territory never before seen. In the Antarctic Captain Wilkins has flown a total of 6,000 miles, 25 per cent of which was over previously unknown land.

"And," observed Captain Wilkins, "although I've been through my full share of difficulties, I've never had any occasion to ask for help."

First to Fly in Antarctic

Captain Wilkins has conducted two aerial exhibitions into the bleak Antarctic. On the first, late in 1928, he was the first to fly in the Antarctic and his main discovery was that Graham Land was a group of islands separated from the Antarctic Continent by an ice filled channel, as against the former theory that Graham Land was a continuous body of land and part of the Antarctic Continent.

The expedition's chief flight lasted 9 hours. About 1,200 miles of hitherto unknown land were covered on this flight alone. With Captain Wilkins on the expedition were the late Lieutenant Eielson, Joe Crosson, pilot, and Orval Porter, expert aviation mechanic.

In the fall of 1929 Captain Wilkins set out on his second Antarctic aerial expedition. His aides this time were Parker D. Cramer, pilot; Al Cheesman, pilot, and Porter. The expedition, in a few short months, pushed back the Antarctic Continent by about 8 degrees, discovered five new islands, charted about 1,200 miles of coastline, completed the location of 12 suitable points for meteorological stations, determined that Charcot Land is an island and not part of the mainland, as supposed, and obtained some valuable and new biological data on Antarctic life.

Great things are planned by scientists and explorers for the immediate years ahead. A vast concentration of scientific brain and man power is projected for 1932 when an extensive International Expedition will get under way. This project has the backing of great scientific organizations and societies and already many countries have signified their wish to be partners in the undertaking.

Captain Wilkins' immediate part in the International Expedition's work will be the carrying out in the summer of 1931 of his much discussed submarine trip across the North Pole, making his way underneath the ice. Plans for this trip in a submersible vessel are rapidly taking form.

"I'm firmly convinced this submersible vessel trip is the safest thing I've

Outstanding Features of Sir Hubert Wilkins' Career

He has seen for the first time more land than any other explorer.
He was first to fly in the Antarctic.
He has flown more than 15,000 miles in the Arctic.
He has flown more than 6,000 miles in the Antarctic.
He has added to the known world 540,000 square miles.
He has had many narrow escapes but has never had to ask for help.
He insists that his submarine trip to the North Pole is "the safest thing I have planned to do in 15 years."

planned to do in 15 years," said Captain Wilkins. "I actually believe it's safer than flying. Of course, there are doubters who scoff at the idea, but the ridicule of these people doesn't bother me. I'm used to that. Why, as few years ago as 1919 people everywhere said it was absolutely out of the question for an airplane to fly over the Pole."

"Just as people changed their minds about the airplane, so they are changing their minds about the submarine and the chances for using it in exploration work in the Arctic."

Every Safety Factor Planned
"Every feature of the proposed trip is being gone into. Every safety factor is being worked out. We are preparing for every possible emergency."

"From my Arctic and Antarctic experience I know you never find a piece of ice more than 20 miles across. Thus we would be able to come up within 10 miles if and when we go under such a large piece of ice. In other words we would be able to rise within 10 miles of any given spot in the Arctic Ocean."

"We will also have methods for cutting our way right up through an ice barrier, if necessary—a telescopic cutting tower, drills, and other apparatus operated from the inside."

"Our maximum traveling speed will be 4 miles an hour under the ice. We will have a fuel range of 7,000 miles which will provide an ample margin of safety for our trip of about 2,200 miles. I know the North Pole is navigable. We will not go deeper than 300 feet."

"Our work will directly tie in with the proposed aims of the International Expedition. Scientists want me to proceed with this expedition to better determine what conditions man must contend with in the heart of the Arctic—to pave the way for the International Expedition so they will carry on with the right tools for effective work."

"It will be our aim to make a thorough study of the region so that we can inform the International Expedition of the difficulties to expect, the dangers to avoid, the equipment to carry and how to go."

"Another important objective will be to make a preliminary test of the possibility of developing trade routes across the Arctic with submersible vessels. If it is eventually found practical for commercial submersibles to make their way underneath the ice, trade in the Far North could be kept up for at least 10 months in the year instead of the mere four months, as at present."

It is in the science of meteorology that Captain Wilkins is particularly interested. He visions the time when the North and South Poles will be surrounded by meteorological observation stations which will cooperate with the stations in the more temperate zones in the study of atmospheric conditions with the idea of making long-range weather forecasts.

"It is known," Captain Wilkins said, "that there is a direct relationship between conditions in the Arctic and Antarctic and conditions in other parts of the world. But much work remains to be done to determine the full scope and strength of the influence the North and South Poles exert on the weather of other sections."

Captain Wilkins started his polar exploration work in 1913 when he joined the Canadian Arctic Expedition of Vilhjalmur Stefansson, another famous explorer. Stefansson's expedition was made up of a northern and southern group.

His Career With Stefansson

Captain Wilkins served with Stefansson for three years. Although he was born on the southern edge of the tropics in Australia, he showed himself well fitted for work in the North and became one of the most efficient men on the expedition.

Stefansson's aide and photographer then entered the World War. Joining the Australian forces, he went to the western front in France as a photographer. He was promoted to Captain, was placed in command of the Australian airplanes, was cited several times for bravery and at the end of the war was cited by the Commander-in-Chief of the Australian forces as the combination of the bravest and most useful man of that entire great army.

After the World War he began to plan his own Polar work in earnest. In 1919 he made his first trip to the Antarctic as second in command of the British Imperial Antarctic Expedition. The expedition did its exploring by foot and by boat. It was beset by great hardships.

Knighted by King George

Captain Wilkins continued his polar work. It was his aim to fly across the Arctic. He encountered many difficulties in his efforts to accomplish this but he was finally successful in 1928 when he and Eielson made their memorable flight from Alaska to Spitzbergen. They were the first and are still the only men who have flown the entire way across the Polar Sea from the one continent to the other. He was knighted by the King of England for this achievement. It was in the same year that he started on his first aerial expedition into the Antarctic.

Because of the great public interest in the polar regions Captain Wilkins is often called on to speak over the radio on his experiences there, his latest radio talk being from New York on May 28 over WEAF and 29 associated NBC stations as the feature of the Mobil Oil Hour.

Captain Wilkins, who in 18 years has never lived for more than 6 weeks in any one house, now is in New York City laying plans for his submarine trip in the Arctic. He expects to board the Graf Zeppelin when she arrives in the United States early in June and make the return journey with her.

PLANE FALLS UPSIDE DOWN IN RIVER, THREE SAVE SELVES

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 4.—Three airmen who kicked their way through the bottom of a plane after it fell upside down into the Hudson River were under treatment in a hospital here today.

Owen G. Harned, 31 years old, New York, salesman for the Curtiss-Wright Company; Stewart R. Reed, 37, and Augustine Fairchild, 31, Curtiss-Wright employees, were flying above the river at low altitude last night when the plane turned over and fell. After they had saved themselves from drowning by knocking out the bottom of the plane they were rescued from the wreckage by two rivermen.

Harned suffered a broken leg. Reed's right arm was broken and Fairchild suffered a broken rib.

Cottonseed meal has been found to be rich in vitamin G, the vitamin necessary for the prevention of pellagra, a nutritional disease of people fairly common in some parts of the South. The discovery was made by research workers in the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils, United States Department of Agriculture, while studying the value of cottonseed meal in the nutrition of animals. Cottonseed meal was found, also, to be rich in vitamin B, the vitamin which prevents beriberi, a disease of people.

Three negroes, giving their names as Jimmie Cox, 20, of Jackson, Miss., Clifton Jones, 23, also of that city, and "Chinie" Short of New Orleans, were arrested on suspicion Wednesday afternoon between Skeston and Morley by Constable Brown Jewell and Deputy Constable Dick Hopper.

The trio was taken before the prosecuting attorney, M. E. Montgomery, who ordered them remanded to jail pending investigation. Conflicting stories as to the origin of the car led to a telephone call to the Pate Motor Company at Jackson, Miss., where W. T. Pate informed the Scott County officers that the car, a 1929 2-door Ford Coach had been issued to J. W. Brown of Belzoni, Miss. Montgomery checked details of the story told by the negroes and obtained information from Sheriff T. J. Gilmer of Belzoni that the car had been stolen recently from the Stone Motor Company warehouse.

Constable Jewell was notified by the Mississippi sheriff that one of the boys held here was wanted on four counts for stealing automobiles in that district. Jewell expects to leave this evening (Thursday) for Mississippi with the prisoners and car. Sheriff Gilmer explained in a wire message that he was very busy at present with court duties and requested Jewell to make the transfer.

MAD DOG KILLED WEDNESDAY MORNING

A white bull dog belonging to Harry McGee was shot and killed Wednesday about noon, after an exciting chase starting in the southwest part of town and terminating near Matthews garage. Dr. L. B. Adams removed the animal's head and instructed officers in sending it to the State laboratory for rabies examination.

The dog was first noticed near the R. E. Limbaugh place. Then it was found snapping and biting the blooded bird dogs belonging to Miley Limbaugh. Brown Jewell and R. E. Limbaugh gave chase and shot the animal, causing death, near the Matthews garage on Malone Avenue.

Skeston will entertain the Doniphans at Doniphans Sunday, according to Tom Malone, manager. Just who will start for Skeston in the mound position was not known definitely, although Big Burrus will probably have the honor.

SCOUTS ON ANNUAL TRIP THURSDAY A. M.

Eighteen Skeston Boy Scouts, accompanied by Scoutmaster Wilbur Ensor and their troop leaders embarked early Thursday morning for a two weeks' encampment at Irondale, Mo. The trip was made in Potashnick's big truck.

Each of the boys carried a huge "duffle bag" crammed to the top with necessary equipment.

The Irondale encampment belongs to the St. Louis Council and has been used by Southeast Missouri Scouts for the past several years. It is hoped that with the present Scout Drive for a Southeast Missouri Council, that another camp can be purchased and equipped for the exclusive use of the local district.

CAPE GIRARDEAU CLUB HERE FOR SUNDAY GOLF MATCH

Much is at stake in the coming golf tourney scheduled for Sunday afternoon on the local links. The Cape Girardeau team has not been defeated this season in the Southeast Missouri round-robin tournament, and the Skeston boys are primed to turn the trick this Sunday afternoon. Cape Girardeau still has a match with Poplar Bluff on the Bluff hills and a defeat of the Cape Club there will work wonders for Skeston's chances of winning the cup.

In the "if" column is this state of affairs: If Skeston can finish the season without a defeat at the hands of Cape Girardeau and Charleston, and Cape is defeated at Poplar Bluff, the locals get the honors.

SCOTT COUNTIANS AGAIN ON THE AIR OVER KFVS

The second Scott County hour to be broadcast over Station KFVS at Cape Girardeau is scheduled for 10 to 11 o'clock Saturday, June 7. Misses Lillian and Audrey Reiss will render piano solo numbers and duets. Harry Dover, Skeston's "boy with the golden voice", will be heard in a baritone solo, and Polly McDonough of Morley will give several piano, saxophone and vocal numbers.

The Chaffee Hot Steppers, a strictly male orchestra, will furnish music for the radio hour.

DAIRYING
By Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S.
St. Louis, Mo.
Dr. LeGear is a graduate of Ontario Veterinary College, 1892. Thirty-eight years of veterinary work. Eminent authority on diseases and raising of dairy cows and other livestock and poultry. Nationally known lecturer, writer and author.

HOW TO CHOOSE A PROFITABLE DAIRY COW

Dairying is the largest revenue producing department of the livestock industry of the United States. The products made from milk of our dairy cows, which include butter, cheese, ice cream, condensed milk, powdered milk, etc., amount to more than four billion dollars annually, which is our greatest industry.

There are approximately twenty-two millions of dairy cows, including heifers two years old or over, on farms in the United States. Of this number, about one-third of these cows are loafers or boarders and are kept on our farms at a loss. About one-third break even, that is, they make no money; and one-third are good profit producers. If only one-third of the cows on our farms are making money to the owners, it is very essential to know how to select a good dairy cow.

"Buy the best and breed them better" is the slogan of a leading Jersey breeder. This slogan in my estimation is the best one that I have ever seen or heard. Those seven words mean more to the upbuilding of our dairy herds than any words that I have ever seen grouped together. Cheap cattle are seldom a bargain. Deep-bodied cows with good type and plenty of capacity are the most profitable to the owners. Cattle of this quality may cost more, but the profits from the sale of milk and surplus stock are much greater. It pays to "Buy the best and breed them better".

What is a dairy cow worth? This is a question that I am often asked, and there is but one answer, and that is that she is valuable in proportion to her production in the milk pail. One cow may not be worth her keep and another may be worth $500 or more. There are two ways of deciding a cow's value. One is to buy her and see if she pays her way and interest on the investment, and the other is to see her record as made in a cow-testing association or on official test by the breed association. A cow-testing association record is more likely to be found and may be considered reliable.

The cow is the hardest worked animal on the farm. She must have a strong constitution to produce largely, persistently and profitably. Constitution is indicated by large, open, well distended nostrils, by well-sprung fore ribs, and deep heart girth, signifying room for large heart and lungs. Also by largeness of windpipe and breadth of chest.

A cow never produces a pound of milk from anything other than feed and water. Other things being equal, the more feed a cow eats, the greater will be her yield in milk. Therefore, it is essential that a cow have capacity, which is indicated by a large mouth, strong jaws, and a large abdomen, "denoting a good feeder". She must have a body that is deep and long, with well-sprung ribs far apart, and a wedge-shaped conformation.

A good dairy cow must have what is known as "dairy temperament", which determines whether she is a worker or a loafer. This is indicated by a broad well-dished face and a large, bright, prominent, staring eye. A dairy cow should not put on too much fat along her back, and she must have wide, prominent hips. She must have good blood circulation for carrying food nutrients from the digestive system to the udder, where these nutrients are converted into milk and butterfat. A good circulation is indicated by prominent veins on the udder and large, crooked and elastic milk veins.

A good dairy cow must have ability which gives her the power of manufacturing milk and butterfat efficiently. This is indicated by an udder of good quality texture that is long and broad, between thin, well-arched thighs. The udder also should hang high behind, and should be carried and well forward.

I recommend bull circles or bull associations as the cheapest way and a good way to build up the quality of dairy cows in any community. The very best bulls available should be used for breeding.

I most heartily endorse the work of cow-testing associations, for in these cow-testing associations complete records of the milk produced and the feed consumed are kept, thus enabling the farmer to market his

SHERIFF STANLEY LOSES CAR BY THEFT WEDNESDAY

A neat transfer from a car stolen in Portageville to one owned by Sheriff A. E. Stanley, Sheriff of New Madrid County, was performed in that city Wednesday night about 7:30 o'clock.

The Portageville car was driven up near Sheriff Stanley's machine near the court house. The thieves evidently liked the New Madrid officer's make or model better, and drove away with it. A .38 Smith and Weston revolver had been left in Stanley's car.

Stanley's car is a 1930 2-door, black Ford coach, license number Missouri 211-746. Constable Brown Jewell was notified immediately and blocked the highway at Skeston. The car failed to show up.

A preliminary report of the Boy Scout finance committee given Thursday afternoon reveals that approximately $200 in cash has been raised by five of thirteen teams engaged in raising funds for the establishment of a Scout Council in Southeast Missouri. Finance Chairman Lee Bowman seemed optimistic over the prospects of "going over the top" to reach the Skeston quota of $600. There have been practically no refusals thus far, but the drive has merely been slowed up by other conditions which kept several teams out of the field. No one denies the value of Scouting as a movement, and any delay, in raising necessary finances, or otherwise, will merely tend to discourage Scout officials in carrying out a full-fledged program in this section of the State.

CHANGE GUARD RAIL TYPE IN HIGHWAY DIVISION 10

The State Highway Commission, through the Bureau of Maintenance, has started reconstructing all old type guard rail in the State.

The old type rail was originally built in 7-foot panels, using creosote posts, 4x4 top rails and 2x6 side rails. This type of rail is considered dangerous inasmuch as the top rail, in some cases, injures occupants of a car crashing into the guard rail.

The reconstruction plan is to use the same posts as is now being used, remove the top and side panels, placing eye bolts through the posts and threading them with 3-4 inch cable which will be tightened and anchored at each end of the guard fence. The top half of the post will be painted white and the bottom half black.

Many other States are using this type of guard rail, and it is found to be more protection to traffic in case of an accident, and is much easier to maintain.

Gravel contracts were recently let for the resurfacing of Route 25 in Cape Girardeau County from Jackson to Appleton, a distance of seventeen miles; Route 34 in Bollinger County, from Marble Hill to Cape Girardeau County line, a distance of 9 miles; and Route 51 in Bollinger County, from Lutesville south seven and one-half miles.

The contract on Route 25 was awarded the Lahar Brothers of Booneville, and the work on Routes 34 and 51 in Bollinger County was awarded to Emmett I. Forshee of Ironton.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL FROM NEW MADRID

The Board of Directors of Cons. Dist. No. 9, New Madrid, met with the contractors Monday evening in the County Court room of the courthouse, to let the contract for the building of the new high school and grade school and the addition to the negro school. Pearce, of Bonsack & Pearce, architect, employed for the work, drove down from St. Louis Monday to be present at the meeting. Seven general contractors, and fifteen or twenty plumbers, electricians and representatives of heating systems, made bids, none of which were satisfactory to the Board, and all were rejected. A new date will be set within the next two weeks, at which time bids will be resubmitted.

Robert Hatchett, 30 years old, negro, was drowned in St. John's bayou, and one a half miles east of New Madrid early Tuesday morning. Hatchett, who was employed by W. S. Edwards in doing some clearing work in the timber across the bayou, was crossing the stream in a small skiff with another negro. In some way, the boat overturned in about 8 feet of water, and Hatchett sank without returning to the surface, the other negro swimming to the shore. The body of the drowned man was recovered about ten minutes after the boat overturned, but he could not be revived. After a coroner's inquest, the body was buried by Hill Bros. undertakers of Libourn.

Power laundries are important consumers of cotton products, consuming approximately 52,000 bales of cotton annually, the United States Department of Agriculture says. Cotton is consumed in the form of wash nets, twine, padding, sheeting, laundry bags, double-faced felt, and cover duck. Wash nets alone account for 14,900 bales of cotton.

JAIL BREAK AT BLOOMFIELD IS NIPPED IN THE BUD

Bloomfield, May 30.—Plans for the escape of Lone Spain, 24, who was arrested in Benton, Ill., April 30, and brought back here charged with holding up Lancaster's store in Bernie, were foiled Tuesday when Sheriff Beal made a search of the quarter in which he was kept and found ten hack saw blades hidden behind a picture on the wall, and a "billy" wrapped and hidden above the door. The "billy" had been made from an iron bar, which had been carefully wrapped with a blanket. It also had a strap on one end, so that it could be easily held.

The sheriff acted on a tip and searched the room, and found the saws and "billy". He also examined the bars and found that work on them had already been started but none of them had been cut entirely through.

The officials state that Spain had several visitors Sunday, and it is thought that the blades were smuggled to him sometime during the day. Sheriff Beal says that in the future, all visitors that call to see any prisoner, will be carefully watched.
